ARRENDRIA, Jan. 18 .- This day sixteen years ago daid Pasha died somewhat sud-denly; his nephew, Ismail, the present Vicercy and Kaedive, ascended the throne of Egypt, and all loyal Egyptians have now come to Cairo to congratulate his Highmen on the anniversary. This modern Macedenian dynasty seems as firmly planted on the banks of the little as the the states that of the Ptolemies. The hereditary succession is secured, the internal administration of the country is dependent of the Porte, felbute is almost the only proof of dependen-ov, and foreign attack is impossible as long ex the present protection of England and France is extended to Egypt.

Yet ninety years sgo the grandfather of Ismail Pashs was a tobsood dealer at the Italy. Are you better than they t and haven't you unification t"—did not satisfy them. They said:
