Choosing a Profession.

Nothing, as one gets older and more acrustomed to varieties of men, strikes one more strongly than the small proportion of mankind who, being free to choose, that is, not ces, or parents, or the small bribes in the way of patronage, make hopeless blunders course, in all professions are unsuccessful, and thousands among them, again, do not deserve success; but of those who fail a large proportion would have failed in anyany other. It is easy to find scores rusts who draw feebly, or just so bad'y that their lives are made miserable by illsuccess, but very rare to find one who positively cannot draw at all, who not only has mutaken his proportionate power among his fellows, but the very character of his own faculties. There is no delusion among suncated men so common as that of literary apacity. We have seen literally hundreds of pretenders who thought, in the simplest bonesty, that they had only to publish to secure an instant recognition. But we have are an instant recognition. It might have been expected that the Exturns just issued by the Prefect of Police ully bear out the antimpation. Gold and filver ornaments and jewellery sufficient to furnish forth a large jewellery shop have been stored at the Prefect's office for months; and of watches alone there were found and brought to the police no fewer than five hundred, almost exactly half of which were gold and the other half silver. An enormous number of the things recovered were found by cibmes in their carriages. Probably the most astounding part of the whole retarn is, however, that which gives the proportion of articles claimed to those melaimed. It appears that, of the whole number of about twenty-twe thousand articles found, only about twelve thousand were ever oilled for.

Consumers of Cut Nalls, that they have putchased the SOLE RIGHT for the Dominion of Canada, to use COYNES PATENT from BUST, SCALE, SLIVERS, and HEADLESS NAILS, thereby ensuring to the CONSUMER at least to 5 FOUNDS MORE of perfect Nails to the Keg than these made by other makers in Cahada. By the old system of packing Nails (still practised by all other Nail Mahufacturers in the Dominion, and until lately by American Manufacturers, who have seen the absolute necessity of using the Coyne Picker to surtein the requisition of their nails, and now use that derice only), every Eag is alled with the whole production of the Rail Machine, and stronges to each Keg 5 to 5 Founds of Dust, Scales, Ellivers, and Headless Rails. It must then be clear to Consumers that they are made to pay for just that quintity of worthiese sorap, whereas by purchasing Nails selected by Coyners Automatic Picker there is a clear mying of from 13 to 15 centrum Fig.—We invite all to test the result for themselves by picking over a Keg of our make and trated any other maker. Every Eag of Halle made by us will bear a GREEN OR RED LABELL, and in order to secure the adventages maked, bee that every Keg is label. "Belected by Corne's Patent Antonistic Licker."
