A LINK OF LOVE.

I am a confirmed old bachelor, as much as my sister's dear old-fashioned and homely-looking father-in-law. Our days have been passed in the quiet life of a country town, where I have lived for so many years. We have lived there so long that it has become almost part of ourselves. It is the place that saw my first love, and better than any other place I have known, it has seen my success and my failure.

Some seven years back Sir Robert Marland, a man of high standing in the city, was my first love. I had known him since I was a boy, and he had known me since I was a girl. We were both of us in the same school, and we were both of us in the same class. We were both of us in the same school, and we were both of us in the same class.

Upon examining Sir Robert's papers I found there was nothing but a proud old name for an old man. I had known him since I was a boy, and he had known me since I was a girl. We were both of us in the same school, and we were both of us in the same class.

"I had known Outbert Heriton since he was a boy. He was the son of the man who had been my father's friend. He was a man of high standing in the city, and he had known me since I was a girl. We were both of us in the same school, and we were both of us in the same class.

"I thought it best that Ethel should see me for herself, so I rang the bell and requested Mr. Marland to send her to me. I had known Outbert Heriton since he was a boy, and he had known me since I was a girl. We were both of us in the same school, and we were both of us in the same class.

"I was in a very nervous state, and I was in a very nervous state. I was in a very nervous state, and I was in a very nervous state. I was in a very nervous state, and I was in a very nervous state. I was in a very nervous state, and I was in a very nervous state.

"I will be your wife," Outbert said. "I will be your wife," Outbert said.

"My ever loved one," Drop me a line to my mother, I beg you. I am ever your affectionate son, and I am ever your affectionate son. I am ever your affectionate son, and I am ever your affectionate son. I am ever your affectionate son, and I am ever your affectionate son.
