

YOUNG FOLKS CORNER.

STRIKING BOTTOM.

A halting Made Freddie went Against man's wisdom and court.

A Peculiar Sermon.

One evening a century ago a party of rollicking youths in England caught a zany man who was on his way home from a visit to the sick.

Before, let me create your attention, for I am a little man come at a short notice, to preach a brief sermon from a small text, to a thin congregation, in an unworthy pulpit.

And now, my beloved, my text is Matt; which I cannot divide into sentences, because there are none; nor into words, because there are none; nor into syllables, because there are none; nor into letters, because there are none.

M—my beloved, is Moral. L—is Liberal, and T—is Theological.

The Moral is well set forth to teach you Barticks good maxims; therefore, M—my masters, A—all of you, L—leave off T—tipping.

The Allegorical is when one thing is spoken of and another is meant; now, the thing spoken of is Matt, but the thing meant is strong Beer, which you Barticks make.

The Theological is according to the effects which it works; firstly, in this world, secondly, in the world to come.

At first, its effects are, in some, M—murder, in others, A—adultery, in all, L—looseness of life, and in many, T—treason.

Secondly, in the world to come, in some, M—murder, in others, A—anguish, in some, L—lamentation, and in others, T—torment.

I shall conclude the subject, first, by exhortation: Therefore, M—my masters, A—all of you, L—listen, T—to my text.

Secondly, by way of caution: Therefore, M—my masters, A—all of you, L—look for T—the truth. And thirdly, by communication, which is this:

A drunkard is the annoyance of modesty; the spoiler of civility; the destruction of reason; the robber's agent; the slave-wooer; the benefactor; the peasant's trouble; his wife's woe; his children's sorrow; his neighbor's plague; life on a shame; a walking will-rob; the picture of a heart, and the monster of a man!

Words of Wisdom. Vice has more martyrs than virtues. Give neither counsel nor salt until you are asked for it.

Advancing or retreating we still go on—by and by to go off. There are columns against which even innocents lose courage.

Better be upright and want, than wicked and have superabundance. An ounce of conviction is worth a pound of cautions.

Anger, like rain, breaks upon what ever it falls. Draw not thy bow before the arrow be fixed.

Never expose your disappointments to the world. If you would make a chief, honest, trust him.

The simple flowers are sociable and benevolent. Fortunes can only take from us what she gave.

Words sometimes wound more than swords. A good book supplies the place of a companion.

He who stops to pick a flaw in other's knitting work, drops many stitches in his own. A year of pleasure passes like a fleeting breeze, but a moment of misfortune seems an age of pain.

Life, as we call it, is nothing but the edge of the bonfire of existence. A pig without its punishment is as impossible, as complete a contradiction in terms, as a cause without an effect.

Travelers and tourists should always be provided with Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry, the best remedy in the world for curing suffering brought on from eating riper or sour fruits, and milk, impure water, change of water and climate. The great remedy for all summer complaints.

Entertaining Company.

The whole philosophy of hospitality is summed up by Emerson in the following: "I pray you, O excellent wife, not to cumber yourself and me to get a rich dinner for this man or this woman, who has slighted at our gate nor a bedchamber made ready at too great a cost.

A Muscular Scotch Woman.

An English wrestler called at the house of John Macneil, the famous man of Dumfries, having heard of his strength and power of wrestling.

The wife heard all he had to say, and made the answer:—"Well sir, I'm sorry John's as at home, but I should be vexed to see you disappointed. But if you think, and if you like to throw me I'll throw ye myself!"
