

GUSTAVE DORE.

No name in the annals of modern art is more widely known, no other artist's works are perused so imperfectly understood. Despite his religious power and wonderful versatility, it is useless to deny the fact, that Gustave Doré, judge at least by his pencil sketches, does not please the popular taste. People turn over the leaves of his "Illustrated Bible," or "Paradise Lost," and—end by leaving lost in wonder, but not in admiration. They admit him to be a most startling art phenomenon, and this of course is the opinion of the masses of the great—wise world at large, too busy to think, and too heedless to study, seeking to be amused, preferring comedy to tragedy. Artists, art students and art lovers, however, of course, a different and double a juster estimate of his place. But if industry brings its own reward, his must be great indeed. His is a name that exerts magic with it, suggesting images which lift us from this too work-a-day world into the realm of fancy—taking us from the practical into the ideal. The world at large, as well as France, have reason to be proud of Gustave Doré.

A wonderfully faithful reproduction of Doré's celebrated picture, CHRIST LEAVING THE PRETORIUM, printed on the finest engraving paper, is offered to every subscriber of the Montreal Weekly Witness who sends the name of a new subscriber with his own, and the new subscriber receives the picture as well, each paying $1.10, the usual subscription price of the paper.

YOUNG FOLKS' CORNER.

Trudging off to School.

Early in the morning,
Then again at night,
Sextons of little children
Take up their golden chain
Banding over green fields,
Breaking father's rule,
Bounding over by-paths,
On their way to school,
Swinging little basket;
Tossing little in air,
Busy little children.
Meet us everywhere!

Tripping through the gardens,
Putting down each stalk,
Bounding over by-paths,
Tossing little in air,
Busy little children.

Manly little fellows,
Brimming over with fun,
Cheeks as white as snow,
Blue eyes and black eyes,
Everywhere they go!

Smiling little faces,
How they cheer our way,
As toward the school-room,
Merrily they stray,
Flitting here and there,
Out open the air,
Chasing after bright looks,
From each soul dull care!
Clouds the day would darken,
Gloom our hearts would rule,
Could we see no children
Trudging off to school!

Dreaming and Doing.

Amy was a dear little girl in many things—but she had one bad habit—it was too apt to waste time in dreaming of doing, instead of doing.

In the village where she lived, Mr. Thornton kept a small shop, where he sold fruit of all kinds, including berries in their season.

One day he said to Amy, "Would you like to make some money?"

"Of course I should!" said Amy; "for my dear mother has often to deprive herself of things she needs so that she may buy shoes or clothes for me."

"Well, Amy, I noticed some fine ripe blackberries, in the bushes around Mr. Green's field; and he said that I or anybody else was welcome to them. Now, if you will pick the ripest and best, I will pay you eighteen pence a quart for them."

Amy was delighted at the thought, and ran home, and got her basket, and called her little Quilly, with the intention of going to once to pick the berries.

Then she thought she would like to find out with the aid of her slate and pencil, how much money she would make if she were to pick five quarts. She found she should make three shillings and fourpence—almost enough to buy a new calico dress.

"But supposing I should pick a dozen quarts, how much should I earn then?"

So she stopped and figured that out.

"Dear me! It would come to eight shillings!"

Any then wanted to know how much fifty, a hundred, two hundred, three hundred quarts would give her; and then how much she could get if she were to put it in the saving bank, and receive five per cent interest on it.

Quilly grew impatient, but Amy did not heed his barking; and when she was at last ready to start, she found it was so near dinner-time that the midday bell off her gathered till the afternoon.

As soon as dinner was over she took her basket and hurried to the field; but a whole troupe of boys from the school were there before her.

Amy soon found that all the large ripe berries had been gathered. Not enough to make up a single quart could she find. The boys had swept the bushes clean. All Amy's efforts were徒劳无功. Sadly and sadly she went her way home, reciting on her way the words of her teacher, who said to her:

"One deer is better than a hundred dreamers."

Words of Wisdom.

Early waits at virtue's elbow.
Conduct and courage lead to honor.
Kindness is the golden chain by which society is bound together.

Jealousy is the height of egotism,
self-love and the irritation of false vanity.

Return equity and justice for harm done to you, and pay goodness by goodness.

There cannot be a greater treachery than first to raise a confidence, and then desire it.

He is not only idle who does nothing but he is idle who might be better employed.

The necessities that exist are in general created by the superfluities that are enjoyed.

When a young man has learned to wait, he has mastered one of the hardest lessons in life.

Unhappy is the man for whom his own mother has not made all other mothers venerable.

There are few occasions when ceremony may not easily be dispensed with,
but kindness, never.

Find earth where grows no weed,
and you may find a heart which no
earth grows.

There is a man in Newark so close that when he attends church he occupies the pew furthest from the pulpit, to save the interest on his money while the collectors are passing the plate for contributions.

Somebody gave little Augustus two toys. "I will give this one to my dear little sister," he said, showing the largest. "Because it is the prettiest," said the delighted mamma. "No," he replied, without hesitation; "because it's broken."

The Orangeville Advertiser lists the mark when it speaks as follows:—

"Many people appear to be unconscious of the imposition they are practising in taking a newspaper without paying for it until due for a year or more. Does the farmer get a year's credit on his grain, or the merchant on his goods?
Is the laborer expected to wait a year or his wages, or the clerk or official for his salary? Is any one expected to wait a year or more for his money besides the printer, who has to pay cash for all his expenses?"

A minister with a rather florid complexion had gone into the shop of a barber, one of his parishioners, to be shaved. The barber was addicted to heavy bouts of drinking, after which his hand was, in consequence, unsteady at his work. In shaving the minister on the occasion referred to, he inflicted a cut sufficiently deep to cover the lower part of the face with blood. The minister turned to the barber, and said in a tone of solemn severity, "You see, Thomas, what comes of taking to such drink."

"Ay," replied Thomas; "it makes the skin very tender."

FELLOWS' COMPOUND SYRUP OF HYPO-PHOS-PHITES

It contains the elements essential to the animal organization, the oxidizing agents and tonics, being slightly alkaline, and is dispensed in the convenient and palatable form of a syrup. Its effects are usually visible within twenty-four hours, and are marked by a stimulation of the appetite, the digestion and assimilation entering directly into the circulation; it tones the nerves and muscles, arrests a healthy action of the secretions; neither disturbs the stomach nor injures the system under prolonged use, and may be discontinued at any time without inconvenience.

In a word, it possesses the stimulants to arouse the strength, the tonics to retain it, and merit of a high degree.

Doctors Give Him Up.

It is possible that Mr. Godfrey is up and about and cured by so simple a remedy?

I assure you it is true that he entirely recovered in a few days. He has not been sick for ten days past and his doctor gave him up and said he must die.

Now if that is so, I will go this instant and get some for poor George. I know tops are good.

NEW MILLINERY.—Christie, Henderson & Co. will receive their new Fall Millinery in a few days, and early next week will be prepared to fill orders. Thanking their many patrons for past favors, they respectfully inform their friends that they have a full line of Ladies' Millineries, and will supply all their wants. They will, when required, purchase thousands of our best people, take it and give it to their children. They are now in full force, and will be ready to supply all who desire them.

They are very attractive and very cheap. Remember the Famous 50c. Tea, sold in 5 lb. lots at 45c.

ZOPESIA.—I have secured the new compound for Dyspepsia and Liver Troubles. It comes to me under most favorable auspices, being very highly endorsed and recommended. Its wonderful ability to cure the Dispersive Organs and the Liver, increasing the dissolving juices, correcting the acids and carburets of impurities of the Stomach and regulating the Liver, can be tested in a moment. I am sending a sample bottle which sells at 10c. or large 8oz. bottle at 75c. each. Dr. McArthur.
