YOUNG FOOL'S CORNER.

COUNTRY CHILDREN.

Little fresh violet,
Born in the wildwood;
Sweetly illustrating
Innocent childhood;
She is the antelope—
Brown as a berry—
Free as the mountain air,
Roaming and merrily.

Blue eyes and hazel eyes
Peep from the bushes,
Shaded by sun-bonnets,
Play at the edges,
Up and down the trees,
Carded and dancing,
Manhood in embryo,
Stays at the stranger.

Out in the hilly patch,
Seeking the berries—
Under the shade of trees,
Peep on cherries,
Trampling the clover bloom,
Down 'morn the grasses,
No voice to hinder them,
Dear lads and lassies!

No grim propriety—
No interdiction—
From city restriction—
Couting the purest blood,
Strengthening each muscle,
Dousing health's sensor,
'Gainst life's coming battle.

Dear little innocents!—
Born in the wildwood;
Oh! that all little ones
Had such a childhood!
Blue skies spread over them,
Earth's green boughs them
No sweeter heritage
Could we bequeath them.

We Never Drink

On the stage were seven or eight riders from the Eighth Maine Regiment. While at the stage house in Lincoln, there came into the office a poor blind man, stone blind, slowly feeling his way with his cane. He approached the soldiers, and said in the gentle tones:

"Boys, I hear you belong to the Eighth Regiment. I have a son in that regiment."

"What is his name?"

"John."

"Oh, yes, we knew him well. He was a servant in our company. We always liked him."

"Where is he now?"

"He is a lieutenant in a colored regiment, and a prisoner at Charleston."

For a moment the old man vented not to reply, but at last, easily and slowly, he said:

"I feared as much. I have not heard from him for a long time."

They did not wait for another word; but these soldiers took from their wallets a sum of money, nearly twenty dollars, and offered it to the old man saying:

"If ever whole company were here, we could give a hundred dollars."

The old man replied:

"Boys, you must put it in my wallet, for I am blind."

But mark what followed. Another individual in the room, who had looked on the scene as I had, with feelings of pride in our soldiers, immediately advanced and said:

"Boys this is a handsome thing, and I want you to drink with me. I stand treat for the company."

I waited with interest for the reply. It came:

"No, sir; we thank you kindly; we appreciate your offer—but we never drink."

The scene was perfect; the first was noble and generous; the last was grand. How many soldiers under the same temptation would have spoiled a similar good deed by taking thanks for it out of a whiskey glass!

A Victory.

An old Dutch dominie in the country, the Rev. Dr. —, was a shrewd man, and he once had a hulky horse, which always stopped at the foot of a certain hill and took his own time for starting. One pleasant morning the dominie concluded he would try his way of cutting the horse, so he put a day's provision and a day's reading into his carriage, and started for the hill. At the foot the horse balked as usual. The Doctor laid down the reins, settled himself back, and took out his book. After waiting some time the horse concluded he would go, but with rein and voice the Doctor forbade it, so they stayed there all that day till it was too dark to read, when, hungry and thirsty and wearied, the horse went up the hill, and never balked again.

Ask your dealer for "Castorine" Machine Oil, and see that the barrel is branded "Castorine," as no other is genuine.

The Editorial Opinion.

A country editor who saw a candidate's announcement in a rival paper and was unable to find it in his own, turned his attention to the candidate as follows:

"A NICE PILL.—Bill Wiggins is out with an announcement that he is a candidate for sheriff. Who is Wiggins? A hundred persons have asked us that question within the past few days, and we have taken pains to hunt his record up. Wiggins is a man who has lived in this community for the past ten years, seeking office and finding none. He has buckled like an old mule, still-legged, at every tickle he has been on, and tried to burst every combination that was not made in his interest. He is a political parasite that the voters of the town should put their foot on for the last time. He needs a final quietus, and the noisiest!"

Just then Mr. Wiggins entered, laid down five dollars for his announcement, explaining that he had intended to bring it earlier, but it slipped his mind. He was hurried around the corner, before the editor had thrown his article in the waste basket and then wrote as follows:

"A REPRESENTATIVE MAN.—We are glad to announce the fact that Colonel William Wiggins, well and favorably known in these parts, announces himself a candidate for sheriff. Colonel Wiggins has always been a consistent man, and never identified with the bolters and towheads who have always made themselves useful in the country for the past few years. He has stood by the party in the darkest hours of its history. Col. Wiggins' name will be a tower of strength to the ticket and will lead us to a glorious victory. His heading the county ticket makes it folly for the opposition to nominate a man to run against him."

A Master of Language

Millers use floury language.
And the butcher's language is just killing.

The undertaker's dialect is grave and sepulchral.

But the printer's talk is chaste and pressing.

The hardware merchant has a rasping voice, and if he keeps stoves he'd a great talker.

The music dealer's tones are harmonious even in the highest pitch.

The language of the carpenter is, as a general rule, plain, and he never likes to be "bored."

Sewing Aprons.

No woman knows until she has worn one what a convenience a sewing apron is. Cut a small round apron of calico or any other material which you choose, make a deep pocket across the bottom, in which you may carry work, and into which your scissor, thimble and thread may slip when you are obliged to rise and leave your sewing for a short time. The large pocket may be divided by stitching it through the center, and smaller pockets may be added at the top. The same apron makes a good clothes pin bag when you are hanging out your washing.

Ask your druggist for a trial bottle of Brooks Blood Bitters, it will only cost you 10 cents, and a few doses will prove its efficiency as a health restoring Tonic-Regulator of the Bowels, Liver and Kidneys. It is specific for all diseases arising from impure blood and disordered secretions.

Mother! Mother! Mother!!!

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with the excruciating pain of cutaneous eruptions? Go at once and get a bottle of Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup.

It will relieve the poor little sufferer immediately—depend upon it; there is no mistake about it. There is not a mother on earth who has ever used it, who will not tell you at once that it will regulate the bowels, and give rest to the mother, and relief and health to the child, operating like magic. It is perfectly safe to use in any case, and pleasant to the taste. The prescription is the same of the oldest and best physicians and nurses in the United States. Sold everywhere at 25 cents a bottle.
