The Prompt Cherk

A young man was commencing life at a erk. One day his employer said to him : Vinegar is drawn in a lin basin, "Now, to-morrow that cargo of cotton must be brought out and weighed, and w must have a regular account of it." He was a young man of energy. This was the first time he bad been entrusted to superintend the execution of this work. He made his arrangements over night, speake to the men about their carts and horses, and resolving to begin very early in the morn ing, he instructed the laterers to be there at half-past three o'clock. So they set to work and the thing was done; and about ten or eleven o'clock his master came in and seeing him sitting in the countinghouse, looked very black, supposing that his command had not been executed.

"I thought, said the master " you were requested to get out that cargo this morn-

"It is all done," said the young man, "and there is the account of it."

He never looked behind him from that moment-never! His character was fired, confidence was established. He was found to be the man to do the thing with promptness. He very soon came to be one that could not be spared; he was as necessary to the firm as any one of the partners. He was a religious man, and went through a life of great benevolence, and at his death was able to leave his children an ample

What are Boys Good For.

The archin who saswared, "They are good to make men of," made an admirable reply. But the sort of men we are to have in a few years depends upon the sort of boys we have now. A man is but a grownup boy. The present crop of boys contains some hopeful specimens, who give promise of useful manhood. But it also shows a Isrge percentage of boys who must be reconstructed before they can possibly develop into a manhood that can fill any honorable or useful positions in society. Boys who shun or shirk useful work or improving study, and spend/their time in idle dissipation or vicious activities, can never become useful men. Boys who, being obliged to do something for their support, amiduouslysock easy work, are not hopeful prophecies Throat, and many other ailments for of manhood. They will never am much. It is from these two classes that the constantly-increasing armies of shysters lawyers, quack doctors, poor preachers, bummer politicians, drunken loafers, petty thieves, tramps, deadbests, &c., are chiefly recruited.
