THURSDAY MORNING, Nov. 3, 1881.

YOUNG FOLKS' CORNER.

WILFUL TOMMY TIT.

"I'm going to fly," said little Tom Tit, "Before my wing feathers were strong; I'm going to fly," said that little tit; "I'm no longer weak—not too young—
111 fly, so high, so high,
Sky-high, well nigh."

Then he turned on his brother Tom Pitts.
"A look all of pride and disdain;
His brother Tit is tauntingly swift,
The brave as he, yet not so keen,
And so to try."

"I'll fly, so high."

"I'm off—Good-bye!"
From his song roared home he plunged away,
And heartily fell to the ground;
He dizzily chirped, then silent lay
No more to chirp with boasting sound—

"I'm going to fly,
Up—up—up high."

His brothers shook with terrible fright;
To see round Tom Tit's awful fall;
And each received—that safer such might—
Never to leave the nest at all,

Or not to try.

The soon to fly.

Wooden Swearing.

A Sabbath school lesson was about swearing, and when the children had repeated their verses, the minister rose to talk to them.

"I hope, dear children," he said, "that you will never let your lips speak profane words. But now I want to tell you about a kind of swearing which I heard a good woman speak about not long ago."

She called it wooden swearing. It's a kind of swearing that many people besides children are given to, when they are angry. Instead of giving vent to their feelings in oaths, they slam the doors, kick the chairs, stamp on the floor, throw the furniture about, and make all the noise they possibly can. "Isn't that just the same as swearing?" said she. It's just the same kind of feeling exactly, only they do not like to say those awful words; but they force the furniture to make the noise and so I call it 'wooden swearing.' I hope, dear children, that you will not do any of this kind of swearing either." It is better to let alone wooden and all other kinds of swearing.

Advice to Young Men.

Never use a lady's name in an improper place, or at an improper time, or in mixed company. Never make assertions about her that you think are untrue, allusions that you feel she herself would blush to hear. When you meet with men who do not scruple to make use of a woman's name in a reckless and unprincipled manner about them, for they are the very worst members of the community—men lost to every sense of honor, every feeling of humanity. Many a good and worthy woman's character has been forever ruined, and her heart broken by a lie, concocted by some villain, and repeated where it should not have been, and in the presence of those whose judgment could not deter them from circulating the foul report. A slander is soon propagated, and the smallest thing derogatory to a woman's character will fly on the wings of wind, and magnify as it circulates, until its monstrous weight crushes the poor unconscious victim.

Live Purely.

Boys—boys, if you look into the early life of truly helpful men—those who make life easier and nobler to those who come after them—you will almost invariably find that they lived purely in the day of their youth. In early life, the brain, though abounding in vigor, is sensitive and very susceptible to injury—and this to such a degree that a comparatively brief and moderate indulgence in vicious pleasure appears to lower the tone and impair both the delicacy and efficiency of the brain for life. This is simply the truth of science. Poor memory, absentmindedness, lack of application, indolence, listlessness, and a hundred other "symptoms" indicate "bad habits." Oh, the beauty and benefit of purity! Oh, the foulness and calamity of vicious indulgences!

A young Biddeford man proposed for the hand of a beautiful girl lately. As she hesitated about replying, he said: "I await your answer with bated breath." The girl, who is a good deal of a humorist, said: "Well, Mr. Man, you will have to bait your breath with something besides high wines and Limburger cheese to catch your humble servant. Good evening."

Said Mrs. Smith, who had come to spend the day, to little Edith, "Are you glad to see me again, Edith?" "Yes, mom, and mamma's glad, too!" Mrs. Smith. "Is she?" "Edith?" "Yes, mom; she said she hoped you'd come today, and have it over with."

THE VERY NEWEST STYLES OF MILLINERY at the RIGHT HOUSE

Although Watkins is not going to have an OPENING DAY on account of his immense staff of clerks being driven to their utmost ability in waiting on the vast number of customers which throng his spacious stores, and in marking and getting his enormous stock into the various departments to which it belongs, yet he never had a more suitable time or more effective stroke to make one of the richest and most imposing displays of the season with, only it would be cruelty to his clerks to ask them to remain late at night for several nights to get the goods placed in showy and attractive positions, and then there is no necessity for it, as the experience of the past shows that there will be no over-supply of goods. His stock of CLOTHES IN THE WORLD. HIS BLACK CASHMERE'S are dyed by the celebrated French dyers, CHAPPAT & CIE, OF PARIS, and are well known for their quality and durability. His stock of FRENCH FLOWERS this season that he ever had. His stock of OSTRICH AND FANCY FEATHERS is enormous, in black, white, and all the new colors and shaded styles.
