The Scott Act.

Monday morning witnessed the advent in Halton of the Canada Temperance Act, for three years, and at the same time the retreat of the License System, we trust, forever. Our county has entered upon an era of its history which will be of vital importance to the cause of temperance in every part of province, as the success or failure of the Scott Act in this county, to do what has been claimed for it, will be either beneficial or detrimental to the cause of local prohibition in Ontario for many years to come. But there is little to fear that it will prove a failure, as the temperance people are thoroughly organized throughout the county, and are determined to leave nothing undone to make the trial of the Act in Halton a success.

The matter of accommodation to the travelling public and the farming community is the only cry of any significance that can be raised against the Act by its opponents. Of course the Scott Act does not close up the hotels, —only the bar,—but the keepers of these houses have seen fit to close all accommodation against both friend and foe. However, the friends of the Act have been exerting themselves to remedy this drawback, and as far as Acton is concerned, ample accommodation has been provided for man and beast, and the committee is sparing no pains to look after the comfort of all who require food or rest, notwithstanding any reports to the contrary. Encouraging reports have also been received from all parts of the county.

The action of the hotel-keepers in closing their houses, stables and sheds, seems to us undefinable. It is not denied that about seven-eights of the people who ever patronized the hotels are friends of the hotel keepers and consequently opponents of the Act, also that nearly one-half of the voters polled in Halton were polled against the Act; why then do the hotel keepers treat their friends in such a thankless manner, after all the kindness shown them, and after leaving their money with them for years. It does seem a most senseless proceeding, when it is considered that it is not the friends of the Act who are being discommoded, but, on the contrary, the very friends and supporters of the hotel-keepers, and we feel certain that this action will not elevate them, even in the eyes of their own friends.

As far as the enforcement of the law is concerned, the supporters of the Act in Halton are determined that their opponents will be unable to boast that "liquor is being openly sold," and are so thoroughly organized that this will be impossible. There is no doubt, however, that the "old topers" will continue to get their supply of "the ardent," and that there are men unprincipled enough to sell it to them, on the sly, but the open temptation to the young is—by this new law—removed, and it is a self evident fact that if the young of the present day are saved from the effects of the accursed liquor traffic, we will have a generation of men in a few years which for sobriety, honesty, integrity and excellence in all virtues, was never equalled since the liquor tyrant became king.

Friends of temperance! you have gained a round on the ladder never before attained during the last half century you have been fighting for the right. Let not your energy slacken in any respect. Continue to stand up for what—even your opponents acknowledge—is right, and victory over the soul-destroying fiend is yours.

Prohibition.

To the Editor of the Free Press.

DEAR SIR:—The christian temperance people of Halton have by the blessing of God on their efforts, and after many years of hard and expensive toil in the successive stages of the temperance movement, succeeded in pushing the battle to the gates. On the great scripture principle of having the stumbling block removed, least the weak and the lame be turned out of the way, "Prohibition" has to-day become the law in Halton, and any further proof that such a law is by the circumstances of the case demanded, than the admission made by the Rev. D. B. Cameron in his "Thoughts on Prohibition and the Temperance Pledge," would, we think, be superfluous. He says: "Drunkenness is a heinous sin, and if the guilt is not pardoned and the lust mortified it has the tremendous power of excluding the drunkard from the kingdom of God forever." This terrible truth in connection with the undeniable—because self-evident—fact that all drunkenness flows from, and is the result of the traffic in intoxicating liquors, ought to be a sufficient reason to all intelligent minds, of the necessity of putting forth every lawful effort to have this fearful stumbling block removed. And so much the more so when it is manifest that the promoters of the traffic are now, as always, determined to defeat the object of the law of prohibition. It cannot be denied that the case of the temperance people is made much more difficult in Acton through the course pursued by the two ministers of the gospel in the village, who are giving the liquor interests all the support and influence of their position as ministers of the gospel over important congregations. But while this is to be deplored, yet we ought not to be at all discouraged thereby, but rather incited to put forth the necessary force to make as soon as possible the necessary provisions for the accommodation of the travelling public, and so remove the only objection to prohibition that has in it even the semblance of any force. The committee should let the "Trade's Benevolent Association" know that the people of Halton are not so dependant on the "craft" as they suppose, and that their guile—in leading the temperance people to believe that they were willing to rent their premises, up to the last day of their license term, and then refuse point blank—will avail them but very little, and let them know that the people of Halton can get along without them.

Yours, etc.,
J. W.

That Chancery Case.

To the Editor of the Free Press.

DEAR SIR:—I beg to inform you that your report of the chancery case, which appeared in last issue of the FREE PRESS, was not exactly correct and would ask you to insert the following from the Toronto Mail, respecting the case:—

SMITH v. CAMERON.—W. Cassells and Peterson for plaintiff; J. E. Rose, Q. C., and Johnson for defendant. This was an action by the plaintiff on behalf of himself and other creditors of the defendant Charles Cameron to set aside deeds made by Cameron to one McGarvin, and by the latter to Cameron's wife. Since the deeds in question were made the defendant, Chas. Cameron, and his wife had disagreed, and while the defendant, Chas. Cameron, acknowledged that the transaction was intended to protect the land in question from his creditors, the wife maintained the transaction was bona fide, and for valuable consideration. Decree for payment by the defendant in a month of the sum of $490, $450 of that sum to bear interest, the whole sum to be charged upon the land in default of payment in a month, or sale of the lands. No costs to any of the parties.

I am,
yours, etc.,
C. S. SMITH.

Manitoba and the North-West.

A full and complete history of the country. By John Macoun, M. A., F. L. S. The World Publishing Company, Guelph, Ont.

(Montreal Gazette, April 4th.)

The above is the title of a work now in press that has been eagerly looked for. We have seen the advanced sheets and can say that the promises of the title page, though large, have been more than carried out. This is no catch-penny affair but a standard work. Prof. Macoun made his first trip in 1872 in company with Sandford Fleming and Principal Grant in their celebrated trip from ocean to ocean as botanist to their expedition, soon after which he resigned the place of Professor of Botany and Natural History in Albert University, Belleville, to take the position of Government explorer, which appointment he has filled with great credit. As an explorer he was sent each year with a staff of trained men to investigate a certain section and bring back specimens of soil, natural products and full reports. For nine years he kept his notes, refusing to publish them until he had visited every section and finished his work, which he accomplished in November last. Since then Rev. Principal Grant and other able men have been assisting him to get his work ready for the press. He has also had the official departmental aid in the necessary preparations. So that the forthcoming work is the most complete that we may expect for some time in regard to the Great North-West. Prof. Macoun has long been considered the most reliable authority on this very important section of the Dominion. Both Government and Colonization pamphlets refer to him and his statements have never been challenged. Prof. Macoun finds it a great relief that he is now able to give the world the benefit of his information in book form, as the hundreds of letters of inquiry that he has received from time to time have long been a burden to him. The work has been profusely illustrated, in fact very few books ever issued in Canada can compare with it in that respect. A fine two-page colored lithograph of Winnipeg, showing the present city is a great contrast with a view of Winnipeg in 1871, shown in another part of the book. Many fine photographs and drawings have also been made especially for the work. The work contains excellent maps, printed in colors, the large land map of Manitoba showing the counties, in colors, a map showing territory west of Manitoba affords much valuable information. Archbishop Taché has contributed the history of the Roman Catholic Missions of St. Boniface which forms a part of the work. The first men in the Dominion have subscribed for the work in advance of publication, among them His Excellency the Governor-General, Sir John A. Macdonald, Sir Charles Tupper, Hon. Mr. Pope, Minister of Agriculture; Hon. Edward Blake, Hon. A. Mackenzie, Sir Richard Cartwright, Thos. White, M. P., of Montreal, and many others. Dr. Schultz has given an order for 50 copies. The publishers, aware that the circulation of this work would be many times greater than any book sold in Canada, have wisely concluded to make the price about one-half what books of a similar size and style of manufacture are usually sold for, so as to place it within the reach of every family. We hope all our readers will embrace the first opportunity to procure a copy of this work.

Testimonials will be published next week.

The company have still a few vacancies for agents.
