One Pinger Less

Last baturday, Georgie, seven year old son of Mr. H. Marlatt, butcher, had the misfortune to lose the third flager of his left hand. He and his brother were cutting kindling wood, and the little fellow took hold of a block, and before he had time to remove his hand the axe his brother was using came down upon his hand, severing the fluger. Dr. Lowry was called in and dressed the hand, and the little fellowwho has more than ordinary pluck-is getting along very well,

O. Y. Ster, Esq., has returned to Acton, after an absence of several months. Everybody is well pleased to see this gentleman again among us. When in town nobody does more to help moral, religious and social progress. Peter X, of the Berlin Nece, relieves bimself as follows in last Saturday's ed lion:-" Mr. Moore, editor of the Acton FREE PRESS, who was up to help at a game of cricket, called at this office, looking as cheerful and smiling as possible. The HEE PREST IS a good local paper, and Mr. Moore is a jolly good fellow, the only won der being how he can keep up the spirit of his paper with the Scott Act in fuil blast." Why, friend Peter, there's no wender about it. It's a mystery to us though, how a man of your ability and intellect could wonder how things have as air of prosperity, in a municipality where the inoxicating curse is prohibited. Doesn't is sand to reason that if money is not spent for atoxication liquors it will be spent in the egitimate channels of trade. Thus it is that the Soott Act sas sie rather than rehis arrest.
