A Journal Valued by Every Reader. The first number of the seventh volume of the Renfrew Mercury was issued on Dominion Day. The Mercury is one of those prosperous journals which is continually improving, and is now in the front ranks. Its proprietors, Messrs. A Canadian Donnybrook Fair.

According to the reports of visitors to the Jubilee celebration at Crewson's Corners on Dominion Day, the affair was a far as possible a perfect reproduction of the notorious Donnybrook fair, which has been given so much prominence in the pages of history. About 1500 people assembled and the celebration would no doubt have orderly enough, had it not been for the abundant supply of whiskey which was furnished for the occasion. Whiskey flowed freely and of course the common sense of the partakers forsook them. Disorder then held sway, drunken brawls and bloody fights ensued, and those who had any consideration for personal safety and respect took their departure. Whether the management were aware of know, but that they were totally unable to control the roughs who patronized the "tub" is a patent fact. The case should command | their offices with any requirements in type, the immediate investigation of the Scott Act inspector for South Wellington. Fatal Barn Raising Accident.

An accident by which Mr. Thomas Dearing lost his life happened at a raising on the farm of Mr. P. J. Inglehart, moar Palermo, on Tuesday afternoon. The first bent had been placed in position and the second was being raised, when, by the fallnig of a girth, the stays were torn from their fastenings and both went to the ground with a crash. The frame was seing erected on a high foundation, and out for the fact that the bents fell backwards other lives would doubtless have been sacrificed. As it was, several of those resent were seriously though not danger ously hurt. They were much admired on all sides, and it is speak ing mildly indeed when we say that citizens generally felt proud of the boys and the attractive appearance they presente The new uniform is of a fine dark blu cloth; the coats are trimmed with gold oraid, white braided cool, white cuffs and gold buttons, and the pants with a wide white braid with gold centre down the ou side of the leg. The new caps received few weeks ago are a perfect match for th suit, and a neat music case with shoulde strap completes the outfit. Messrs. J. Fyle and M. Brennan were the tailors. Messrs W. H. Storey & Son made the music cases and the caps were procured from a military uniform manufacturer in Philadelphia. The uniform is a credit to our tailors, and is just as serviceable and satisfactory as i double the amount of their cost had been sent to some firm with a big name away from town. More than the usual interest is now centred in the Band, and favorable changes and additions to the membership have recently been made. The following is the present composition :- J. C.
