MUNICIPAL HONORS
Aman ...
ACTON HAS NO COUNCIL.
Considerably less interest was manifested at the nomination on Monday than for several years past.

tery law suit. Thanked the people for their confidence in electing him, but was not anxious for further honors.

The Acton Free Press.
THURSDAY, DECEMBER 29, 1887.
TEMPUS FLIGIT.
The year eighteen hundred and eighty-seven will have been laid away in the records of the past, ere we again meet our readers at the home fireside.

In connection with the nomination Reeve Fyfe made a very fitting and reasonable suggestion. Considering the fact that the present Council were induced to accept office very reluctantly, owing to the perished condition of municipal matters, but having accepted, they succeeded by judicious action and the presentation of a bold front in the interest of the municipality in settling in their favor the obnoxious cemetery litigation, and further, that having been successful in conducting the affairs of the village with very general satisfaction, they well deserved the honor of being re-elected by acclamation.

Mr. W. E. Smith, said:—If you think me capable of filling a Councilor's chair again elect me, if not I will be pleased to remain at home. Council matters had been fully referred to by previous speakers.

An error into which all are liable to fall should not be further indulged. We refer to the melancholy strains in which many are prone to take leave of the fleeting year, and after Old Time's shadowy form, as he shoulders his satchel, draws his long hair and leaves it to be picked up and inverted by the merry faun youngster who jumps nimbly over the wall to tell the gladden his venerable predecessor has left somewhat neglected. This blithely and lively lad, who wears on his forehead the characters "1888" wastes no time in grumbling and fault-finding over the work of his departed friend, but, on the contrary, at once begins his labors with the zest of an enthusiastic and merry crew.

The candidates seem to be like a flock of sheep, when one goes through a gap the whole flock follow. Two of the candidates declined on nomination day, and others have been dropping out ever since. When the list was written three remained, but Messrs. Brown and James followed the flock. Messrs. W. E. Smith and John Kenney remain firm, and seem determined to keep in the Council while they are so sure of the position without a contest.

Mr. John Kenney said if elected he would do his best for the corporation. Thanked his mover and second. Did not believe in making his speeches until he showed what he could do.
