The Young Folks.

CHRISTMAS HYMN.

Once more, with songs of rapture,
We greet this holy day,
And low before our Saviour
Our grateful homage pay:
Our gifts of light and joy
With hymns of gladness shone,
And to the waiting people
The infant Christ made known.
Carols—carol, merrily
Before the newborn King;
Joyful, joyful, in the air,
Our Christmas praises ring.
As on that starlit evening,
Long centuries ago,
The wise men humbly followed,
His resting place to know:
They left their gifts of love,
Like them are pressing forward,
Like them look up above—
Sing, ye hosts of heaven!
A King to us is given!
Forever more to reign;
Hymns with songs of gladness,
O all ye sons of men!
All let your hearts again—
E fill your hearts again.—Ceo.

THE KING IN THE MANGER.

There's a song in the air!
There's a star in the sky!
There's a mother's deep prayer,
And a baby's low cry!

Chorus—And the stars rains its fire,
While the Beautiful sing,
For the manger of Bethlehem
Cradles a King, &c.

There's a tumult of joy
Over the wonderful birth,
For the Virgin's sweet boy
In the Lord of the earth.

Chorus—Ay the stars rains its fire,
While the Beautiful sing,
For the manger of Bethlehem
Cradles a King, &c.

In the light of that star
Life and ages imperial,
And that bright morning
Has swept over the world.

Chorus—Every heart is astir,
While the Beautiful sing,
In the homes of the nations,
That Jesus is King, &c.

We rejoice in the light,
And we echo the song,
That comes down thru' the night,
From the heavenly throng.

Chorus—Ay we thank the lovely
Evangel they bring,
And we greet in his cradle
Our Saviour and King, &c.

FROM LITTLE TO GREAT.

Many years ago, an invalid lady whose home was in the country, visited a large city where she lived on a sultry August day. She had business in some of the smaller streets and alleys and was appalled at the number of pale, puny and sick babies in their mothers' arms who were literally dying for a breath of fresh air. What could she do?

"I cannot save all," she said, "but I may save one. There is room for a mother and her child at home."

She took the one mother and her child to her country home, kept them for a fortnight, and then took them home and brought others. Her neighbors followed her example. The next summer the number of children entertained amounted to hundreds; the next thousands.

Another woman, who lived in the city and had no money to give, was vexed that she could not help in this most gracious charity.

"I can, at least, tell others of it," she said. She wrote an account of it for a New York newspaper.

A third woman, possessed of great wealth, sent a thousand dollars to the editor, with the request that he should open a fund for this noble purpose. The Fresh Air charity was the result. The various organizations throughout the United States for the removal of poor children from the polluted air of the cities to the country have grown out of this first attempt of a single weak woman to save one dying baby.

During the past two years the charity has taken root in England and on the continent. No one but God knows how many lives have been saved by it.

If the woman who thought of it on that torrid day she passed, sick and weary, through the suns, had decided, "I cannot save all, why should I try myself?" what would have been lost!—Preston's Companion.

A MECHANICAL NOVELTY.

The remarkable Mannesman process of making seamless tubes is described by Mr. F. Stenner as consisting in passing the red-hot bar of solid metal glass between revolving conoidal rollers. These rolls are so arranged that the varying velocities of the bar are brought into contact cause the formation of a hollow through the bar's centre. Tubes a foot in diameter, with a shell only a quarter of an inch thick, may be produced in this way, and strength is claimed for them. Tubes with sealed ends may be made, the hollow centre being a vacuum.

SALT FOR SEASONING.

"What is your father, Willie?"
He's a man."

"Oh, I mean what do he do for his bread and butter?"

"He's an aristocrat, and draws houses."

"Tristis was suffering, from a severe attack of indigestion, and as night came on the little one grew feverish."

"Mamma," she whispered, just feel my cheek. I think the cold has gone, and I've got hot in its place."

A REASONABLE VOTE.

"Who did you vote for Congress, Colonel? I asked one sister of another."

"Jim."

"Jim! Thought you didn't believe in Jim?"

"Neither I do. That's why I voted for him. Got tired of seeing him hangin' round home!"—Editor's Drawer, in Harper's Magazine for December.

AMERICA TO MOTHERS.—Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with pain of Cutting Teeth? Nearly all colds are slight at first, but their tendency is to so cover the system that the sufferer becomes a ready victim to any prevalent disease. This use of Ayer's
Cherry Pectoral, in the beginning of a cold, would guard against this danger.

To invigorate both the body and the brain, use the reliable tonic, Milburn's Aromatic Quinine Wine.
