THE INVETERATE BORROWER. Whate'er John Burr desired to use He'd of a neighbor borrow, And promise that he would return

He'd foorrow rakes and spades and hoes, He'd borrow ploughs and harrows. in short, he'd borrow anything. From sickles to wheelbarrows.

The same upon the morrow.

When he went in the house at night After his daily labors, He'd see about him right and left Reminders of his neighbors. He'd see the borrowed candlestick That held the burning taper.

He'd see upon the window-sill The borrowed book and paper. He'd ne'er return the many things The people kindly lent him.

One day he wished to use a borse-He called his boy and sent him To set Squire Miller's chestaut mare,

And soon John Barr was going

So fast by wayside ditch and tree He thought the wind was blowing. He found the horse he couldn't stop. He travelled fast and faster,

Till, miles and miles away from home. He met with a disaster, The wagon ran against a rock, And went to pieces, nearly,

Burr fell out mon the ground And hurt himself severely. And when for all he had to pay The lesson of his sorrow

Was this, that evil comes to him

That only lives to borrow.

RAILROAD STRIKES AND THE PUBLIC.

If intelligent men who are employed in cuts, wounds, bruises and sores, there any ospecity upon a railroad think that they are justified in producing quasianarchy in any community because they may have a just grievance, they hold views whichtere fatal to all social order. They may not see it, but what they propose as remedy for an alleged grisvance is war. They do not defy a railroad company They challenge the whole community of intelligent, industrious, and law-abiding citizens, who are the overwhelming bod of the American people. Public sentiment in this country is not peculiarly favorable to great corporations, or inimical to those who live by wages. The vast majority of the people live by wages, and upon any plain statement of wrong to railroad hands, or any other wage-workers, the pressure public sympathy is with them. Railroad companies have no right to regard themselves as engaged in an exclusively private formers. They are bound to act with reserve to the probable effect of their action upon the public, from whom they have received franchises, and with whom they have made a contract. There is a similar obligation upon the employees of the road Both company and employees of the ros. havel assumed duties to the publi which they cannot bonomably disregard This is a truth which was never so clearly perceived as now, and never more emphasixed in the public mind than by the Central strike. Harper's Weekly.

THE GRAND OLD MAN

Some time ago I endeavored to trace back this sobrigues at the request of a correspond. | bottle at once. ent. I cut the following paragraph from a page of the Toronto Week. It does not cite its anthority:

The Grand Old Man is a phrase that is devil. popularly supposed to belong to William E. Gladstone, and to have been invented especially to distinguish him. This is not the case. In a speech of the late Dr. Hook, made at Manchester, England, about thirty years ago, and which was brought to light a few weeks since, the (rev.) gentleman med the phrase in reference to the composer Handel. He was addressing a working class gathering at a popular concert, and here is the sentence in which the phrase occurred: "I dared not alinde to the secred oratorio, 'The Messish,' as merely an entertainment and an amusement, for I remember that when the oratorio was first produced in London, and Handel was congratulated on having 'entertained' the town for a whole week, the grand old man in his usual outspoken manner, said : I did not wish to entertain | and I kept getting wome until the pain was the town: I wished to do it good." There almost unbearable, but after I had taken you have at once an interesting anecdote the first dose of Dr. Fowler's Extract of and the precursor of the most famous | Wild Strawberry, I found great relief and sobriquet of modern times.

It is worse than madness to neglect cough or cold which is easily subdued if taken in time becomes, when left to itself, the fore-runner of consumption and premature death. Inflammation, when it attacks the delicate tissue of the lungs and bronchial tubes, travels with perilous rapidity : then do not delay, get a bottle of Bickle's Anti-Consumptive Syrup, the medicine that grasps this formidable foe of the human body, and drives it from the system. This medicine promotes a free and easy expectoration, subdues the cough, heals the diseased parts, and exerts a most wonderful influence in curing consumption, and other diseases of the throat and lungs. If parents wish to save the lives of their children, and themselves from much anxiety, trouble and expense, let them procure a bottle of Bickle's Anti-Consumptive Syrup, and whenever a child has taken cold, has a cough or hoarseness, give the Syrup according to directions.
