The Young Folks.

LITTLE THINGS.

Little sins in dreams.
Little sins at night.
Knock a man's religion.
Higher than a kite.
Little coldish breezes.
Little drafts of air.
Bring on "Grip" and sneezes.
It's time to take care.
Little dreams.
Little quieting pills.
Empty out your wallet.
When we put their tails.
Little drains of whisky.
Little swells of beer.
Make a man a drunkard.
In less than a year.
Little bits of bacon leaf.
Little worth, you bet.
What makes a boy to grieve.
It's a secret.

—Finicky Tidbits.

A BOY'S MANNER.

"His manner is worth a hundred thousand dollars to him!" That is what one of the chief men of the nation lately said about a boy. "He wouldn't be worth so much to one who meant to be a farmer, or who had no opportunities, but to a young college student with ambitions it is worth at least a hundred thousand."

The boy was a son of the man, and had been brought up by careful parents in a far-off city. Among other things he had been taught to be friendly and to think of others before himself. The boy was on a visit in the town where the man lived. They met on the street, and the younger, recognizing the older, promptly went to his side and spoke to him in his cordial, happy, yet respectful way. Of course the man was pleased, and knew that anybody would have been pleased. The sentence above was the outcome of it. A little later the boy came into the room just as the man was struggling into his overcoat. The boy hurried to him, pulled it up at the collar, and drew down the wrinkled coat beneath. He would have done it for any man, the brightness of the poorest.

Do not misunderstand, boys. You may truly oneself and yet not have this boy's spirit. You may wish to do things for others and yet feel that you do not know how. The only way to learn is to try; to hesitate for fear of being foolishness or awkwardness, but to put in direct and instantaneous practice whatever kind, helpful thoughts occur to you.—Congregationalist.

LIFE IN PARIS.

On the boulevard, with its newspapers, its bookstores, its theatres, its wife, its cafes, its celebrities, its adventures, and all kaleidoscopic movement of men and things that animates it from morning until morning comes again, one appreciates that quality of modernity which characterizes Paris above all other cities. In other capitals where the fortunes of a nomad existence and a moderate gift of tongues have enabled me to live and comprehend the local life, I have never found anything equivalent to the life of the boulevard, which is the quintessence of the life of Paris. For the peculiarity of Paris is that it is being constantly renewed; it is not oppressed by history or hampered by an obscure past. There is an old Paris, it is true; one sees it and loves it; but it is so discreet that he who looks it out. The present alone predominates. The vapory regions of souvenir and presentation are not willingly frequented by those who speak the French of Paris and who live in the brilliant sunshine of living Paris; a life of intensity and ardor, here and now, upon the principle that life is the end of life.—Harcourt's Magazine.

"PAW" AND "MAW."

It is agreeable to note that the fine old English words "father" and "mother" are becoming fashionable again, even for children just learning to talk. Some there were who never gave them up, but taught their own children to use the strong, dignified names handed down from English ancestors. . . .

But the modern terms used to designate one's immediate ancestors on the paternal and maternal side have gone through an odd series of changes, each apparently worse than the last. An infant in arms utters its first sound, mamma. A young sheep, calf or kitten, makes the same cry. It is therefore natural. But why should the syllable be perpetuated after the human young ones learn to talk?

Some of the degraded substitutes for the admirable names father and mother are remarkable. In one part of the country the native young one says flatly "gappy and mammy," again "paw and maw." You go on to some place where the inhabitants pride themselves a little on their style, and then the names are Frenchified, accent on the last syllable, "pa-pa and ma-ma." Again, it is "paw and maw" most ingeniously abbreviated to "paw and mom." Another person says "paw and mom," giving 't' the sound it has in "mom." That is bad enough.

But the lowest down, meanest sounding names of all for your immediate ancestors are "paw and maw." The individual who will paw and maw his father and mother and let his children paw and maw theirs deserves to be snubbed by the Poor Household on earth and in heaven.

A Relief for Rheumatism.

A large collection of the best white vintages, the same quantity of turpentine and the beaten whites of two eggs into a wide mouthed bottle, and shake thoroughly. Pour about a tablespoonful of this mixture over a piece of red flannel and apply wherever the pain is most severe; over the flannel lay a small piece of oiled silk. Relief will be almost instantaneous.

Wisdom.—Men can acquire knowledge, but not wisdom. Some of the greatest fools the world has known have been learned men.

MOTHERS, and especially married mothers, need the strengthening support and cheering sympathy of Dr. Piero's Favorite Prescription. It is a safe, simple and the pains and burdens of childhood are removed. It is a healthy, vigorous offspring, and prevents an abundant secretion of mucus on the part of the lungs. It is an invigorating tonic made especially for women, perfectly harmless, and any condition of the lungs, heart, liver, kidneys, etc., are relieved, all the natural functions and nerve centers with them.

The prescription builds up strength, tone, and energy. In all the chronic weaknesses and disorders that affect women, it is practised to benefit or cure, or the money is refunded.

For every case of Cataract which they cannot be cured by ordinary treatment, Remedy Company pay $500 in cash. You're cured by fair and sound, clean, and healing properties, or you're paid.

Gratifying to All.

The high position attained and the universal acceptance and approval of the pleasant liquid fruit remedy Syrup of Pife, as the most excellent laxative known, illustrate the value of the qualities on which its success is based and are abundantly gratifying to the California Pife Syrup Company.

If you had to believe all that other people say in their own favor, you would be obliged to do some lying on your own account, or also fall behind in the procession.

The Toronto Home for Incurables.

Parkdale, Ont., Feb. 27th, 1888.—Gentlemen, it gives me pleasure to let you know I have derived great benefit from the use of Nervilite. I have been a great sufferer from Neuralgia in the face, and had two years I was a complete martyr to the malady. So soon as I was exposed to the Kertine, I advertised I obtained a bottle from ergonotin, Messrs. John Gray & Co., Parkdale, and the effect was miraculous; pure cessation and I can enjoy sound sleep at night, and rise refreshed. I cannot speak too highly of its good and I am better than for years past. I would not now be without B.B.P. and am also giving it to my children.

The Plain Truth

It is good enough for Hood's Sarapilla—there is no need of embellishment or sensationalism. Simply what Hood's Sarapilla does, that tells the story of its merits. If you have never realized its benefits a single bottle will convince you it is a good medicine.

The highest praise has been won by Hood's Pills for their easy, yet efficient action. Sold by all druggists. Price 25 cents.

A rugged-looking fellow who takes the hard eat to have an easy time.

A Complicated Case.

Dear Sirs.—I was troubled with biliousness, headache, and lost appetite. I could not rest at night, and was very weak, but after using three bottles of B.B.P. my appetite is good and I am better than for years past. I would not now be without B.B.P. and am also giving it to my children.

Build Up.

When the system is run down a person becomes an easy prey to Consumption. Schoolmen, many valuable lives are saved by using Scott's Emulsion as soon as a decline in health is observed.

One of the devil's best means of keeping a woman from expectant life is little-tattle. Acting Pain Remover.

Gentlemen.—I cannot afford to spend £100 which I have received so wonderfully. I was completely run down, had aching pains in my shoulders, a throbbing in my limbs, my spleen, in fact every muscle. Being recommended to try B.B.P. J. G. D. H. and with the use of only one bottle I am today strong and healthy. I price it highly.

Working without a plan is one of the best ways in the world of wasting your strength.

For Young or Old.

Children and adults equally benefited by the use of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, the new and successful cough remedy. It stops coughs in one night and may be relied on as an effectual remedy for the last nine years, but being advised to try St. Jacob's Oil can now heartily endorse it as being a most excellent remedy for this complaint, as I have been greatly benefited by it.

Gives Good Appetite.

Gentlemen.—I think your valuable medicine cannot be equalled, because of the benefit I derived from it. After suffering from headache and loss of appetite for nearly three years I tried B.B.P. with great success. It gave me relief at once, and now I enjoy good health.

When the people find out that a good man is at home, they don't care how good he professes to be at church.

Canada is being congratulated everywhere on the excellence of her manufacturers. Art Stained Glass is prominently in the front of her improvement, thanks to McDaniel & Son, of Toronto, who for years have labored, not only to accumulate money, but to make Stained and Ornamental Glass of all descriptions, and to sell them at a profit.

The man who sells goods with a short yard stick would steel the foundation stones of heaven if he could get them.

"Remarkable Cure of Dropsey and Dyspepsia."—Mr. Samuel T. Casey, Belleville, writes:—"In the spring of 1884 I began to be troubled with dyspepsia, which gradually became more and more distressing. I used several domestic remedies, and applied to my family physician, but received no benefit. By this time my trouble assumed the form of dropsey. I was unable to eat food except boiled milk and bread; my limbs were swollen to twice their natural size; all hope of my recovery were given up, and I quite expected death within a few weeks. Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery having been recommended to me, I tried a bottle with but little hope of relief; and now, after taking eight bottles, the disease is gone.
