

THE ACTON FREE PRESS.
THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 28, 1893.
NOTES AND COMMENTS.

In various parts of the province the prohibitionists are organizing for the election to be held in January. There was a disposition on the part of many when the vote was proposed to regard it as a political dodge, and therefore to take an interest in the difference that it would be decided from a temperance standpoint.

The comparative between the comfort of travel in America and Europe has been made frequently and justly to the support and enlargement of our national pride. No country in the world has more comfortable and more convenient arrangements for traveling in a country as progressive as England. The system of "compartment" carriage, the necessity of looking after your baggage personally at every stop, the absence of waiting facilities, and the fact that sleeping and eating are functions to be held in suspension while on a journey have made every traveler from this country feel that it was a good thing to get into the following sheep pen, if only to enjoy once more the lavish luxury of the home passenger train.

Builders of the World's Fair are now getting ready to see the great exposition. More than a year elapsed between the time Congress voted to send the exposition to Chicago and the beginning of operations in Jackson Park. One day after the final closing of the fair the organization is already perfected for the destruction. It only waits the word from Director General Davis. The word will be given on the morning of Oct. 31. At that time the exposition will fall victim to the flames. The case of the owners thereof being known, he told how. Many elements of uncertainty enter into the question, not the least of which is the state of the weather during the closing days of October. The buildings will stay most of them several months and some of them longer, but the exhibits will be loaded and crated and headed away on freight cars.

What is the best thing to do when a burglar comes into your bedroom and proceeds to conduct the business of the profession? To the case of John Hoop, who was done to death on his farm near Acton, it was pretty generally concluded that if the plucky old gentleman had not shown so much courage he would not have lost his life. And in the case which has just occurred in Naperville in which a burglar was shot and killed by a burglar, the same reflection applies. When a burglar enters a man's bedroom he is well warded. He does not intend to take life except as a last resort. His determination is to rob and then escape. To kill anybody except the burglar is unnecessary to him in order to get away, in further from his mind. There fore, the man who displays that quality which is described as the better part of valor has the best chance of retaining unharmed. But a man is not still and so himself rubbed right under his nose, without making an effort to prevent it. To do this would be to encourage burglary and make matters quite to the satisfaction of the whole burglarizing fraternity. Yet you presume that everybody values his life more than he does his watch or his pocket book and nothing is more certain than that the man who is waked out of a sound sleep and finds himself looking down at the breast of a revolver, runs out of ten times the weight of it, being taken altogether at a disadvantage. Times Herald.
