VALUE OF A GOOD FATHER.

When the Rev. Mark Guy Pease was about fourteen years old he went to London, having been a school in Germany. He stayed in London long enough to spend all his money, excepting enough to pay his fare home, and he was obliged to return by train to Bristol, and there he took passage on a vessel. He thought that the passage money included his board, and therefore ordered his meals that day.
