Committed for a Second Offence. It is only about a month since Sie Kelly was apprehended for appropriating a umber of razors, scissors, etc., from one of he barber shops here Monday afternoon no was again arrested while on a visit here. The charge this time was for taking a value, belonging to a Mr. McLe in, of Walkerton, from a O. T R. train last week and selling the value and contents to Thos. Gillies, hotelkeaper, of Malton He was brought before Justices Storey and Pear son on Tuesday for trial. He pleaded guilty and was committed to Milton. There i elected to be tried by the judge. Havoe From Tuesday Night's Rain. The heavy rain on Tuesday night caused a serious cave in of a portion of the south wall of the large new building at Board more & Co's sole leather tannery. The rain poured down from the roof between the wall and the embankment and washed the earth away below the foundation About forty feet of the 20-foot stone wall fell in bodily. Notwithstanding that two of the heavy timbers came down with the wall the superstructure remains standing firm and straight. The accident is in no respect due to carelessness on the part of the builders. The wall was a superior one, | vicinity the past week. but had not had time to become thoroughly dry before the rain came. A large gang of workmen removed the debris yesterday and the masons are at work rebuilding the wall Another Journal in Halton. The first number of the Burlington Record, published at Burlington by Mr. Fred B. Elliott, has been received. It is a well printed, four page, seven column paper and its initial number is a credit to the publisher and to the town. Mr. Elliott is a young man of ability, a practical printer, and is well qualified to serve his coustit nency satisfactorily. The Record will prove of much value to Burlington keeping the outside public cognizant of it existence and of its importance as an outerprising town , as the centre of a large fruit growing district, and as one of the most healthful and attractive takeside residential localities in Ontario The people will soon awake to the value of the Record and no doubt give it liberal support. It is an all home printed paper and will always be found clean in tone as well

Business men who are in partnership but whose partnership has not been registered, have reason to fear trouble. It may be news to some that they are liable to a fine of $100 for doing business without having their declaration of partnership registered to the county registry office, and this applice not only to the firm, but to each partner therein. For 50 cents a partner ship or dissolution oan be registered, and in the cases of the decelet business men is probable they are ignorant of the law in respect to the penalty. There are no saving clauses in the act, which distinctly says the fine is $100 for those firms whose partnerships are not registered within air months of their formation. It may be of general interest to state that it is chapter tled An Act Respecting the Registration of Copartnership and Business Firms which The congregations of Knoz and the Methodist Churches were anited for public worship on Sunday and the spirit of true Christian unity and fellowship prevailed. Rev. J. W. Rac ministered to the united Congregations owing to the absence of the paster of the Methodist church.
