LITTLE LOCAL BRIEFLETS able and profitable to all who were present Epworth League Reading Circle. A reading circle has just been organized in connection with the Epworth League here. Twenty one members of the League have united with the Circle. This is a progressive step and will undoubtedly prove profitable to the young people who interest themselves in the course, which extends over four years. There is a friendship in books and the companionship of the following works during the study of the present year will be of value: "The Life of Christ" by Stalker; "John Wesley; his Life and Work," by Lolievre; "The Firm Foundation of Christian Faith," by Prof. Boot, and "My Brother and I" a selection of papers on social topics by various authors. The Circle will meet each week Tuesday evening at the close of the Lesgue service for review.

Haptist Special Services Closed. The series of special services which have been conducted in the Baptist Church for the past seven weeks closed with a social tes and service on Tuesday evening. Re-J. J. Whyte has endeared himself to people on account of his unswerving faithfulness in his presentation of the whole truth and nothing but the truth. result of Mr. Whyte's proclamation of the Chapel than been that a good number have been converted and added to the church, while saints have been edified and made to feel more keenly the responsibility that rests upon them. Great blessing has certainly been brought to the church through his preaching and we hope that the good work may continue after his departure. Too much cannot be said in acknowledgement of Miss Whyte's assistance in the singing. This was substan tially recognized at the meeting on Tuesday the part of capitaists in various parts of evening. The Church thinks very highly of their paster, Rev. O. G. Langford whose able preaching and faithful pastors chased four lots on Some Street, in Dick work are fully appreciated by his congre sons' survey, and is building a dwelling gation. The Farmer's Names Wanted. An exchange says a discussion is going on in some papers as to the advisability of every farmer having his name painted on his barn or some other prominent place on his farm ; it is orged that the pleasure of a drive through the country would be greatly enhanced by knowing where so and so lived. One objection urged against the unovation is that it would greatly facilitate the operations of travelling pedlars and fakirs. Not a bit of it such gentry do not wander aimlessly up and down the con essions looking for victims they have list of soft headed farmers, purchased from other fakire who have been over the route and know just where to find their men.

The Way to Find their Owners. A number of estray advertisements appear this week.
