PARABLE.

The young man who had great possessions (dressed).
That once again he came to trial, and seemed to have his making as a fortune teller.
And come and follow me." And now he did it all humbly as a deity.

Thus came to those to whom he gave his wealth. Alas! he had not given to the poor.
Or openly, and others he could see.
Wasting his substance with avaricious greed.
And others, yet were waiting, awaiting him.
The ways of sin that had not dreamed of sin.
Others, however, that took were rolled and lifted.

Some that had toiled their whole lives were by rights, and began the life anew.
Of others, like rich men from the first.
From which they had been, and now they were.
From which they had been, and now they were.
From which they had been, and now they were.
