Portry. WORK AND REST.

Wear. Who should be weary? Not he who has life left.

And to whom should it be given? Not to him who has no more to give.

And when is it to be made? Not when the work is done, but when the work is to be done.

And for what purpose? Not for the sake of the thing, but for the sake of the man.

And when is it to be made? Not when the work is done, but when the work is to be done.

And for what purpose? Not for the sake of the thing, but for the sake of the man.

And when is it to be made? Not when the work is done, but when the work is to be done.

And for what purpose? Not for the sake of the thing, but for the sake of the man.

And when is it to be made? Not when the work is done, but when the work is to be done.

And for what purpose? Not for the sake of the thing, but for the sake of the man.

And when is it to be made? Not when the work is done, but when the work is to be done.

And for what purpose? Not for the sake of the thing, but for the sake of the man.

And when is it to be made? Not when the work is done, but when the work is to be done.

And for what purpose? Not for the sake of the thing, but for the sake of the man.

And when is it to be made? Not when the work is done, but when the work is to be done.

And for what purpose? Not for the sake of the thing, but for the sake of the man.

And when is it to be made? Not when the work is done, but when the work is to be done.

And for what purpose? Not for the sake of the thing, but for the sake of the man.
