Another expressed the grateful sentiment; "May you live to eat the chicken that scratches over your grave." A physician said oracularly of a murdered ma: "This person was so ill that if he had not been murdered he would have died a half an hour before."

HOW GIRLS SHOULD CONSIDER PROPOSALS

"My dear girl, when a man asks you to come his wife you ought to put some become his wife you ought to put some questions to yourself. Satisfy yourself that you love this man well enough, not only to be happy with him, but, if need be to suffer with him. Decide for yourself if this is the man of all others in whom you will find your ideal companion, for companionship means as much in marriage as in friendship. Then you must think of the future. Ask yourself, too, whether this man brings out in you all that is best, whether be provokes all that is little and mean in you, or whether he piques you into making light of that which is good. Decide whether this man is the one with whom you would be willing to grow old; whether this man is the one to whom, you would, without besitancy, submit questions that trouble your conscience. Then, too, you must ask yourself what seems, perhaps, like a trivial question, whether thisman is one whose name you will feel honored in bearing, not because of any material wealth he may possess, but because of little pills are little wonder workers and nie being an honest gentleman. Think out all these things, ask yourself questions. not only as to his fitness, but as to yours, and then, if you give him the loving answer that he wishes, try to become thoroughly acquainted with him."

THE NEW MILLIONAIRE.

I ran across a new millionaire the other day whose name I have not yet seen in the papers.. I found him and his family in a little room from whose windows one could see the lake. The living that my friend Midas needs many servants and a palace It appears mostly in those to make passable goes grandly on here in one room and solove. Three servants, Love. There never was, and never will be, a niversal panacea, in one remedy, for ills to which flesh is heir-the very nature of many curatives being such that were the germs of other and differently seated diseases rooted in the system of the patient -what would relieve one ill, in turn would aggravate the other. We have, however, in Quinine Wine, when obtained in a sound unadulterated state, a remedy for many and grievous ills. By its gradual judicious use, the frailest systems are led into convalescence and strength, by the influence which Quinipe exerts on Nature's own restoratives. It relieves the drooping spirits of those with whom a chronic state of morbid despondence and lack of interest in life is a disease, and, by tranquilizing the nerves, disposes to sound and refreshing sleep, imparts vigor to the action of the blood, which, being stimulated, courses throughout the veine, strengthening the healthy animal functions of the system, thereby making activity a necessary result, strengthening the frame, and giving life to the digestive organs, which naturally demand increased substance-result, in: proved appetite. That's what we like to call the class of Dress Muking we do. Don't confuse it with the ordinary Dress Making. This department is now open and is again under the management of MISS CROSS-LAND, who has just returned from New York with the newest and brightest American ideas. The class of work we do is distinctly different from that done in other stores. Have you ever examined our work? It will be a revelation to you it you have not.

Thorough is the word that expresses it. We can't make everybody's dresses. It we could we don't suppose we could get them to make, although in all our experience we have yet to learn of one person who has been disatisfied, there must be some. We have never met them. While we can't make everybody's dreases we can make for the first-comers.
