ANSWERS TO SUIT.

In "Seventy Years of Irish Life," by W.

R. de Fanu, it is asserted that in giving answers the Irish peasantry, as a rple bave no great regard for truth, but reply as they think will be most agreeable to the questloner. An Italian organ-grinder, weary after a long walk, asked a peasant whom he met how far he was from Cork. "Just four short miles," was the answer. "What do you mean," said a priest, who happened to pass at the time, "by deceiving the poor fellow? You know well enough it's eight long miles." "Sure, your reverence." said the other, "I seen the poor boy was tired, and I wanted to keep his courage up. If he's heard your reverence-but 1'm plazed to think he didn't-he'd be down-

An Irish gentleman was shooting with an English friend, a Mr. B. They had very little sport. So Mr. B. said, "I'll ask this countryman whether there are any birds about here.".

"No use to ask him," said his companion; "he'll only tell you lies." "I'll ask him, at all events," said Mr. B "My good man, are there any birds about

"Lots of birds, yer honor." "Tell me what sorre of birds."

"Well, now, your honor, there's grouses and woodcocks and enipes and ducks and all sorts of birds."

Many years afterward, as the author drove with his wife from Killarney to Kenmare, he told her this story. She could hardly believe it. He said : "I'll try with this boy, and you'll see that he'll say much the same." So he taid to the barelegged boy, was running along by the side of the carriage:

near us?"

"Tis the Finntry, your honor." "Are there any fish in it?" "There is, your bonor."

"What sort of fish ?" "There do be throuts and cels."

"Any salmon ?"

"There do be an odd one." "Any white trout?"

"There do be a good lot of them." "Any thermometers?"

"There do be a good lot of them there, too, your honor, but they comes up later in the season than the throuts."

UNPREJUDICED ADVICE

A Western senator tells the story of a man, travelling in a parlor car between Omaha and Denver, who fell asleep and, as Punch would say, "snored profusely from the nose," so that everyone in the coach was seriously annoyed. Presently, says the St. Paul Dispatch, an old gentleman approached the sleeper, and shaking him out of his elumber with a start. "What's the matter ?" be exclaimed.

"Why, your enoring is annoying every one in the car," said the old gentleman kindly.

"How do you know I'm enoring?" "Why we can't help but hear it." "Well, don't believe all you hear," plied the stranger, and went to sleep again.

TRENTON TALK. Not a Rumor, But An Ascortained Fact What a Reporter Has to Say About the Case of Mrs. D. N. Ostrander.

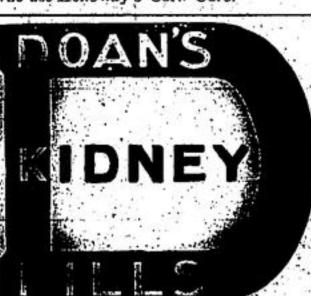

Our reporter called at the cosy residence of Mrs. D. N. Ostrander, Trenton, and was met at the door by a bright sprightly and mergetic lady, who turned out to be-no ess than Mrs. Ostrander bersett, and who told how the was restored from a condition of misory to one of health and strength by the use of Milburn's fleatt and Nerva

Said Mrs. Ostrander: "I have been s great sufferer for many years with my heart and norves, and was almost a complete wreck. When going around the house would get so bad that I had to lie down on the lounge until I could recover my breath. This occurred several times during the day. At night I could hardly elec p at all, and when I would drop off to sleep I would wake up with a start; followed by suffocating feeling as if my heart had atopped beating forever. I have had to have my feet put in hot water, and have hot aloths laid across my body before coover, in fact this was almost a nightly occurrence. Pen cannot protray what my feelings were.. I got very languid and weak had no ambition, and thought that overything was going wrong with me. I grew jous, no! I said he made his money in morbid in mind, lost my appetite, and had. to force myself to out what little I did. I was reduced almost to a skeleton, weighing only 90 pounds at the time I commenced to use Milburn's Heart and Nervo Pille, and I can tell you. I would have given but little for my chances of living much longer. Several doctors attended me, and I have taken full kinds of proprietory medicines, but without avail. I got a box at last of Milburn's Heart and Nervo Pills at Shurle's drug store, and thought that I would try them as a last resort. The results were simply marvellous. I began to improve from the first few doses, and noticed a big difference before I had taken one box. Now I sleep well, the suffocating feeling is completely gone. I have splendid strength, and my appetite is such that I have to restrain myself for fear of cating too much. I can eat anything that is set refore me and am better now than I -have been for years. Am increasing in weight right along, and feel that life is worth the living, thanks to Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills. I recommend them very highly to those suffering from heart and nervo trou-
