PROHIBITION NEVER A FAILURE

The Rev. T. H. Siddull, the only man i in the world, so far as we have heard, who has from pure interest in the question read the entire evidence and report of the Royal Commission on the Liquor Traffic, through in a recent communication to the Religious Intelligencer discussing the promise of plebiscite, eays: "It would seem to be clearly the duty of all active and really earnest Prohibitionists to insist upon the immédiate redemption of a well understood pledge in a straightforward way worthy of honorable men. . The difficulties of the position are not forgotten, neither are the moral obligations pressing upon a Christ ian pation. That the liquor traffic is an immoral traffic is self evident. To sanction it is to share the responsibilty of its sad fruite. The success or failure of pro hibition in suppressing intemperance is not the first question, but, rather, our attitude towards and our responsibility for, a prolillo source of evil. If the liquor traffic is right, then to prohibit it is wrong; if it is salt is a corrective, and vice versa, wrong then we have no right to sanction it Being evil, as we believe, to outlaw it car

Count Doyle tells a story of a friend of his who had often been told that there is skeleton in the cupboard of every household, no matter how respectable that household may be, and he determined to put this opinion to a practical test. Selecting for the subject of his experiment a venerable archdeacon of the church, against whom the most consorious critic had never breathed a word, he went to the nearest post office and despatched this telegram to the reverend gentleman : "All is discovered ! 'Fly at once !" The archdeacon disappeared and has never been heard of since.

It has been discovered that if a steel knife and a silver fork are inserted in large orange an electric current will be generated. If the end of a fork and the end of a knife slicking from the orange are con neoted with an electrical measuring instrument, quite a percaptible current will be seen to pass. The same kind of a battery can be made substituting a cucumber or a lomon in place of the orange, in, fact any sold fruit can be used.

In order to make a voltale pile it is only necessary to procure tou or more pieces of zino, about an inch square, the same numbor of pieces of copper, and a like number of pieces of paper. The paper should be thoroughly soaked in vinegar.

upon purely civil grounds and will find in this a sufficient foundation, even if divine obligation and religious requirement is ignored. The proper aim of human enactment is to secure justice and promote the of slavery, or deny protection to the humble and the oppressed. A law that is calculated to confer upon thepeople great physical, material and social blessings needs no defence. Such a law may utterly ignore all recognition of religious duty, and may simply require the observance of the Sunday rest-day so for as abstaining from labor and unseemly recreations and actions are concerned, because such observance is held to promote the public good. . The results ollowing the enforcement of such a law would clearly justify its enactment from the purely civil standpoint only. Among these results would be found the protection of the toller in the enjoyment of a right essential to his highest intellectual and physical interests; protection from the conscienceless greed of the classes who pooket the dividends swelled by the Sunday toll of the white slaves, whose natural rights and religious scruples are ruthlessly trampled in the dust in the scramble of the money-grabber and the pleasure-seeker; the legal establishment of the best of all sanitary arrangements resulting in the more efficient promotion of public health, cleanliness and self-respect; greatly incressed opportunity for securing the benefits of the higher education furnished by Church and Saubath school; the resulting increase of Christian homes which are the graduating schools of good citizens and the bulwark of the State; the promotion of temperance and the spirit of obedience to the law, as well as of good morals and social purity; and the securing to the toiler the rights of conscience and religious liberty.-John Charlaon, M.P., in Canadian

LIVES IN DANGER.

The Time for Action and Great Care.

CELERY COMPOUND SHOULD BE USED THIS MONTH.

Our changeable Autumn weather brings fear to the hearts of thousands of rheummatic sufferers who are unable to go to warmer climes. The present month with its wet, cold weather and chilling north east winds will, without doubt, increase the agonies of those who are afflicted with acute, chronie, inflummatory and solatio rheumatism. The uric acid in the system, which the kidneys have not removed, is poisoning the blood, causing stiff and swollen joints, twisted legs, arms, tingers, and contracted cords. When it reaches the heart it generally proves fatal.

Rheumatic sufferers, wby remain iu agony and poril? There is a sure ours and cornstarch wit it, which thickens delicate a new life for all if the proper agency is Colery Compound, has triumphantly met hundreds of cases far more subtle and dangerous than yours; it will surely meet your troubles.
