THE CHRISTMAS MESSAGE.

Merry Christmas to all ! Cold mus be the heart that has no response t this great Christmas sentiment; barren indeed the home into which no recoguition of the Christ child enters, no though of that estimable gift that has mide all men bretren. To the poorest and humblest of us this Christman message speaks. The wise mon required the guidance of a star, but to the watching shepherds the angel spoke face to face, and there is a Christmas centiment in all these gay streets and jostling crowds that the wise men of our own day are not always the first to understand. In a few days more the evergreens will have faded and we shall be going about our business with all the stern realities of the new year before us. But we shall of the section in their usual sumptuous carry something over from this great holiday that will not fade if we care to keep it green, a new impulse of faith and, love that will keep, the world still growing brighter and better because of Christmas day.

DUBLIN.

One of the most successful and interestng examinations ever held in connection with Dublin school took place last Friday. Although the day was very unfavorable there was a large attendance of parents and those interested in the welfare of the school. Dinner was provided by the ladies way and all present enjoyed the good things. After dinner, teaching was continued with the various classes. A number of teachers from adjoining sections were present and assisted in the review. Mr. Kerr taught an interesting lesson in arithmetic to the Fourth class. After the teaching Mr. Robertson was appointed chairman of the meeting and an extensive programme was carried out. The chairman in his opening remarks spoke of the excellent work done in the year by Mr. Nixon. Arthurs' Orchestra was present and enlivened the meeting with their music. Mr. J. Gibbons gave two excellent accordeon solos. The pupils of the school gave a number of readings, recitations and dialogues suitable for the occasion. "Tears" is the melancholy title of a sprightly little paper by F. E.
