A SONG OF CHEERFULNESS. The weary world's a cheerful place

For those with hearts to win it : Thank God, there's not a human face But has some laughter in it! The soul that comes with honest mirth, Though health and fortune vary,

Brings back the childhood of the earth, And keeps it sound and morry. The plodding world's an eager place For those with wit to use it; Where all are bidden to the race

Lot him who dare refuse it! The simplest task the hand can try, The dullest round of duty. Knowledge can amply glorify, And art can crown with beauty A busy, bopny, kindly place

Is this rough world of ours, For those who love and work apaco, And fill their hands with flowers; To kind and just and grateful hearts The present grace is given To find a heaven in themselves. And find themselves in heaven ! -Christian Herald.

LOVE AND THE FLOWERS.

You have heard it said-and I bolieve there is more than fancy in that saying, but let it pass for a fanciful one-that flowers only flourish rightly in the gardens of some one who loves them. I know you would like that to be true. You would think it a pleasant magic if you could flush your flowers into brighter bloom by a kind look upon them ; nay, more, if your look had the power, not only to cheer, but to gaard-if you could but bid the black blighs turn away and the knotted caterply ar spare-if you could bid the dew fall upon them in the drought and say to the south wind, "Come thou and breathe upon my garden, that the spices of it. may flow oat." This you would think a good thing. And do you not think it a greater thing than all this (and how much more than all this) you can do for fairer flowers than the-flowers that could bless you for having loved them-flowers that have thoughts like yours and lives like yours, and which once saved, you save forever .- John Rus-
