The Young Folks.

SPOUSE HIS MAMMY KNOWS.

Never within like him any—anywhere! Never seen such eyes as his or such a head of hair.

VARIETIES.

A Michigan editor received some verses not long ago with the following note of explanation: "These lines were written fifty years ago by one who has, for a long time, sleep in his grave merely for pasture."

"Well, little chap," said the stranger in the family, picking up one of the children, "what are you going to be when you are a man?"

There never was, and never will be, a universal panacea, in one remedy, for all ills to which flesh is heir—the very nature of many curatives being such that were the germs of other and differently seated diseases rooted in the system of the patient.

Old People's Troubles. Hard for the old to move about, backache, rheumatism, urinary weakness to disturb their rest at night.

Doan's Kidney Pills. Strengthen the Kidneys and help to cure the distressing troubles.

The germs of consumption are everywhere. There is no way but to fight them. If there is a history of weak lungs in the family, this fight must be constant and vigorous.

It gives the body power to resist the germs of consumption. SCOTT & BOWNE, Chemists, Toronto.

REMEMBERED THE FEE.

Harper's Drawer tells a true story of an almost-mindful man, to whom it came handy to forget. Said one of his best friends:

"You've got right here on this matter from now until the Connecticut river turns round and runs up stream, and tell you about the different things I know of that Hank forgot, first and last; but I'd only mention one instance, and that happened at the time Hank got married."

"I don't know his fallin' as well as anybody, and he was mortal afraid he would forget 'bout givin' the minister the fee; so he kept his mind glued right to that, and completely forgot everything else."

He was to be married in the evening at the parsonage, and when he went there, alone by himself at the appointed time, and meandered into the parlor and told the minister to go ahead with his officiating the good man looked up sort of puzzled and surprised like, and said:

"I haven't you—or—forgotten anything—Mr. Hobbs?" "No, said Hank, still thinkin' of the fee, I've got it right here in my vest pocket. Might pay you as well now as any other time."

"Why, bless you my friend; I wasn't thinkin' of the fee, said the parson, time enough for that after I earn it, but I—er—noticed you'd forgotten the bride an'—"

"By Jiminy!" says Hank, glancing around, "so I have. Glad you spoke of it? I was almost sure I'd forgotten something but I couldn't think what it was."

He grabbed his hat and went out on a jump after his intended. He got back with her before the dominie closed up the parsonage for the night, but it was a close shave and when the story got out 'twas a long while afore folks quit aakin' Hank if he had forgotten anything lately.

Fifty years ago, when a total abstainer wanted his life insured, he had to pay an extra premium. To-day the man who never drinks is the favorite risk of the companies.

An Irishman was riding a frisky horse. The animal presently got his hind foot into one of the stirrups. "By jabbers," said the Irishman, "if ye're going to get up, it's time for me to get down."

"Dab is some folks," said Uncle Eben, "dat 'ud a heap rather dan a reputation for bein' unlovely dan er report of industriousness."—Washington Star.

EASY CURE FOR DYSPEPSIA.

"As painful and annoying as dyspepsia is, it may be easily and quickly cured if the sufferer will only be careful in his daily diet," writes Mrs. S. T. Rover in the March Ladies' Home Journal.
