HOW TO READ ENGLISH LITERA-

The first thing to do in the study of English literature, says Professor Mark H.

Liddell in The Atlantic, is to read it intelligently, to hear the very voice of it speaking to us directly and without impediment to make its thought pass through our minds as it passed through the minds of those who created it, to make its thought our thought. There must be no half knowledge, no vague concepts. The words of it to know the fall force of it, we must know that the words that the author chose were the only ones that he could have chosen. The turns of expression must be happy ones, fitting the thought like a glove. It is the perfection of form that makes it literature and gives it a claim to our attention. Without a historical knowledge of our language such a full appreciation of much of our best literature is impossible. Oriticism with the best of intentions cannot make up by any mathetic fervor for what it lacks of such knowledge.

Sufferers from physical and nervous debility find great relief in the use of PREACHERS AND PEOPLE OF ONE Ayor's Sarsaparillo. Far better than any stimulant, its effect is not transient and superficial, but deep and permament. It builds up the system by purifying and enriching the blood.

"Ever try one of those rubber field worms?" asked the amateur. "Only one," said the fish liar. "They are no good. The fish after he finds out how he has been taken in, dies of mortification before he can be taken out."

Have you tried Holloway's Corn Care ? It has no equal for removing these troublesome excresences, as many have tried it.

STRENGTH CAME BACK.

The Anvil once more rings with the strokes of his hammer.

Mr. Thos. Porteons, the well known lacksmith of Goderich, Ont, tells how sickness and weakness gave way to health and atrength: "For the past four years my nerves have been very weak, my sleep fitful and disturbed by dreams, consequently I arose in the morning unrested. I was frequently very dizzy and was much troubled with a mist that came before my eyes, my memory was often defective and I had fluttering of the heart, together with a sharp pain through it at times. In this condition I was easily werried and felt enervated and exhausted. Two months ago I began taking Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, since that time I have been gaining in health and strength daily. They have restored my nerves to a healthy condition, removed all dizziness and heart trouble, and now I, sleep well and derive comfort and rest from it. That Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are a good remedy for Nervousness, Weakness, Heart Trouble and similar complaints goes without saying." Price 50 cts. a box at all druggists or T.
