- TWILIGHT SOUNDS. Up through the scent of clover's bloom The golden dusk's now falling; Up from the forest's sell green gloom I hear the birds low calling; .
- Up from the brook's white misty fog. (Low clouds o'er long wet grazees) I hear the mellow-croaking frog. On zophyrs light it passes.
- The crickets chirp where daisles grow, And list to bees late humming, And under bridges waters flow. With rippling music coming;
- A-lown the road, a song afloat, Sung by a village maiden, Comes soft on breezes laden ; And in the wood, with fragrant breath,
- The murmuring pines are sighing ; Upon the bosom of the grass,
- The silver dewdrops lying; And as the day fades into night And closes the sweet flowers, Their perfume hangs above thom, light
- As unseen fairy showers. There are no strains in music light That quells the heart's and sorrow As when all nature calls "Good-night," And leaves with God the morrow.

PUNISHMENT IN SCHOOLS.

WOMEN OF Opponents of corporal punishment in the public schools will be interested in hearing that it was a good, sound trouncing that made a man of Admiral Dewey, the hero of Manilla. Previous to that welf-merited castigation Dewey was one of the toughest boys that ever drew breath; and under his leadership the schoolboys of Montpelier, Vt., had compelled the registration of three masters in que term. At last a new teacher came who met the hustling of school-boy mob with fisticoffs, and when Dewey's father refused to discipline his son, the master did it himself with a black snake whip five feet long. Young Dewey's clothes were out to ribbons, and stained with blood before the flogging was over, and it was seven days before he could sit BHOULD USE PAINE'S CELdown; but there was no more mutiny in that school, and Dewey says to this day that it was the flogging that saved him from state prison. Corporal punishment may not be a good rule to follow, but there are boys in every school to whom a licking would come like God's benison in disguise.

MORE THAN HIS SHARE.

In the summer of 1864, says a writer in the Southern Birouac, several wounded officers and two or three privates were going up the valley of Virginia. A rain came on and all hands took shelter for the night in

It happened that in the course of the night a skunk found its way under the floor, and by and by announced its presence after its well-known effective manner.

The officers all waked up, but being gentlemen and each supposing that the others were still asleep, they kept silent. At last one of the privates, a German, could restrain himself no longer.

"My! my!" he exclaimed. "Dish isl public know what Paine's Celery Com too bad! Day shleeps, and I wakes, and ish got to shmell it all !" That broke the charm, and officers and privates burst into peals of laughter. A DEATH TRAP.

HISTORICAL AND CLERICAL.

The London Journal of Education publishes the following schoolboy answers which are warranted genuine, "What do,] you know of Lord Wolseley ?" the answer! Was given: "He was a minister of Henry | wheat, siways reserved by chest, siways reserved by God as I have served my king, I should not have been beheaded !" The confusion between Wolseley and Wolsey is perhaps not remarkable, but a post mortem speech of this kind deserves notice. A better story, however, is of a definition of "tithes" which will be of special interest to the church and stage guild-"things worn by ladies in circuses and pantomimes."
