"Well, pass it over then." He poured out on his plate about three times as mach as would have spread a cheerful glow throughout the whole of When Children are Weak Klondike. Then he tore the inside out of a dinner roll and carefully sopped the vermillion mixture up. Then he-bolted

He didn't shriek, he didn't jomp. He just grabbed the table in a convulsive grasp with his two hands, opened his mouth so wide that the flesh at the corners tore like glazed calico and gasped for air

He panted like forty doge, each of which hadrun forty miles in record time, and the water coursed down from his forehead, from the corners of his mouth and dripped and dripped-dripped on the worn and threadbare carpet. At his written request, for he could not speak, the waiter called a hack and drove him to the nearest fire station where he had the 9 inch hos attached to his mouth for an hour and quarter. He looked much wiser and far sadder when he came down to breakfast next morning with the corners of his month tied up and a patent vulcanized rubber poultice around the inside of his throar, but when he saw the parson all h said was:

WATER GOOD ENOUGH.

The nomination of Lincoln for Presdient the committee from Chicago arrived to apprise Mr. Lincoln of his nomination, his two boys, Willie and Tad were perched on the fence before the house. "Tad stood erect and welcomed the committee by shouling "Hooray." Charles Carleton Cyffin describes the reception of the com

In the library were several hundred volumes ranged upon shelves, two globes, one terrestrial, the other celestial, a plain table, a pitcher of cold water and glasses but no wines or liquore.

"You did not find any great spread of liquors, I take it," remarked a citizen of Springfield the next morning. "No," I replied.

"Thereby hangs a little story : When we knew you were on your way, a number of all probability some of the members of the committee would need some refreshment. wines or liquors. 'I haven's any in the house, he said. 'We will furnish them." Gentlemen, I cannot allow you to do what I will not do myself', was the reply.

"But that was not the end of it. of our good democratic citizens, feeling that Springfield had been highly honored by the nomination, sent over some baskets of phampagne, but Mr. Lincoln sent them back, thanking them for their intended kindness."

AN APPLE PUZZLE.

The following addition to the apparent myelery and the errors of figures is taken from the St. Nicholas Magazine, Perhaps some of our clever high school or public school scholars can furnish a solution and tell where the hole in the sauce pan is:-"Once upon a time there were two old men who sat in the market early every morning and sold apples. Fach one had thirty appler, and one of the old men sold two for a cent, and the other old man sold three for hearty dinner. The food partaken of is a cont. In that way the pres old man gos like a ball of lead on the slomach, and fifteen cente for his basket of apples, while | Instead of being a bealthy nutriment it the other old man received ten cents, so becomes a poison to the system. This the They are just the medicine to take i other old man very kindly consented to do, sroubled with indigestion or dyspepsis. and when he got to market with the two backets of apples he said to himself : "I will put all the apples in one basket for it will be easier than picking them out of two baskets." So he put sixty apples in one basket and said to himself : "Now if I sell two applies for one cent, and my old friend sells three for one cent, that is the same thing as selling five apples for two cents." When he had sold the sixty apples he found he had only twenty-four cents, which was right, because there are twelve fives in sixty, and twice twelve is twenty four, But if the other old man had been there and mach had sold his apples separately they would have received twenty-five cente.

Now how is that explained?"

ONE COLLEGE TRICK THAT WAS GOOD.

After a connection of many years with various colleges, I can call to mind but one college trick among the boys that was unmistakably kind and beneficent.

The year of 1857 was one of remarkable fruitfulness in East Tennessor, and the wheat crop was unusually large and abundant. As this was before the day of mowers and reapers, it was often difficult at such a time to find labor sufficient to gather the crop. This year it was poculiar-Iv embarrassing, and the father of Dr. Jno. H. Brunner, President of Hiwasses College, who had a small farm in the neighborhood, found himself deficient in help to secure his abundant crop of wheat. In his extremity swered he called on his son, Dr. Brurner, to inquire whether there were not some young men in | Smith, it ought to be. You're down on the college who might be induced to lend a lazy to work a puzzle. There never was, and never will be, universal panacea, in one remedy, for all ills to which flesh is heir-the very nature of many curatives being such that were the germs of other and differently seated diseases rooted in the system of the patient -what would relieve one ill, in turn would aggravate the other. We have, however, in Quinine Wine, when obtained in a sound unadulterated state, a remedy for many and grievous ills. By its gradual judicious use, the frailestsystems are led into convalescence and strength, by the influence which Quinine exerts on Nature's own spirits of those with whom a chronic state of morbid despondence and lack of interest in life is a disease, and, by tranquilizing the nerves, disposes to sound and refreshing sleep, imparts vigor to the action of the blood, which, being stimulated, courses throughout the veins, strengthening the healthy animal functions of the system. thereby making activity a necessary result, strengthening the frame, and giving life to the digestive organs, which naturally
