Very Jubilant!

MR. BOLLERT has just returned from Europe, and is very jubilant over the big success he had buying goods in the Foreign Markets. Being financially strong, the very best and largest manufacturers were naturally anxious to do business with us, and the result was Mr. Bollert bought a very large stock of HIGH-CLASS GOODS at very close margin to the manufacturer, and to be sure our customers will get the benefit of the close buying. But to buy such a large stock of high-class goods as Mr. Bollert bought this season takes nerve and almost unbounded confidence in the appreciation of the public for choice goods, but we find the circle of our customers who favor us with confidence in the matter of superior goods constantly increasing, and it affords us great pleasure to cater for their requirements. Genuine merit is appreciated in the long run. We have never almed to produce an impression of apparent cheapness at the sacrifice of lowest quality of the goods we offer, but an honest dollar's worth for an honest dollar has been our principle and we have no reason to complain of the result. Our energies are at been our principle and we have no reason to complain of the result. Our energies are at
