THE CHASE OF THE GINGER BREAD MAN. Once when a baker in Fairyville Was making cakes, as bakers will. He made, and put by itself in a pan. A dear little, queer little gingerbread man. By-and-by, when the cakes were brown

Called out to the baker, who stared in sur "Run, run! fast as you can! Can't catch me, little gingerbread man!" The baker ran, his wife ran too, And pure started up with a brave "Moow, meow !" Old Rover, ran with a gruff "Bow-wow !" Followed by Brindle, the staid old cow.

He opened the oven; when nimbly down

Hopped the queer little man, and blinking his

The horse broke out of the barn with a neigh. For he heard the echo from far away: "Run, run, fast as you can ! Can't catch me, little gingerbread man! Man and woman, horse and cow, Dog and cat were after him now, But none could run as fast as he. And over his shoulder be called in glee; "Run, run, fast as you can ! Can't catch me, little gingerbread man!" But a wolf crept out of the woods at last, And welves, he knew, could run so fast. Yot he hurried on, and bravely cried. Just as the wolf crept up by his side:

"Run, run, fast as you can t Can't catch me, little gingerbroad man ! The great grey wolf took a bite, just one, The gingerbread man was one-fourth gone. A second bite took him up to the weist, Just half was gone and 'twas only a taste. And now three fourths was gone, you'll note Then he swallowed the head as away he ran, And that was the last of the gingerbread man -Ella M. White, in the December Ladies' Home Journal.

Saved the Farm.

Jackson Smith had a hobby, an unconquerable aversion to old maids. And yet, as in very mockery of his pet antipathy, his only child, Sarah, had developed into the hated object, right in his own bousehold. Sarah was tall and angular, like her father, but her face was pleasing and her disposition mild and amiable. She had never revolted against anything in her life -not even against the injustice of spending were making merry.

One day Jackson Smith received a hurt, l'ast hours of his life. and when Dr. Brown was called in he told | A few days later, with all due ceremony,

"I'll never leave this place to a woman that can't get a husband," he said fiercely. "But, father, Sarah's never had no chance; we've always kept her down," remonstrated bis weeping wife. He waved his hand to silence her. Woman, no old maid shall inherit my place. I've sent by the doctor for Lawyer

Clarke, and he'll come to-morrow. There's money enough in the bank for you, but I'll fix it so that at your death it will go with the farm. Jackson Gougan, my namesake, shall get it all:"

A SONG HY THE WAY. Life's sunshine for you, sweet ! I do not ask for one pale gleam of light;

So that you rest not where the tempests I shall ondure the night.

All that the heavens can give Of love, and grace, and glory, be your lot, If that your name in Earth's great honor Let my name be forgot

Life is a little space, And scarce a flower an earthly path

Yet, if one rose shall over kiss your face, I shall not shrink from thorus. In dark, tomultuous nights When I have lingered desolate-forlors I only asked for you the starry lights-

The music of the morn! I do not even pray For the imagined glory of the skies;

If a God's smile shall light your stops that Leave me where dark ness lies. The path which you must tread Be gentler than the paths which I bay

You, to the light, all sweetly, gently led-I, in the dark, alone!
