his son entering professional life, was that he had a brother, who, while very clever, had nothing to show for his years of labor, but a mere living and a good, big account on the debit side—the money spent in educating himself. The father, although not having the education of his brother, had some years ago engaged with the Bradley-Gerretson Co., Limited, of Brantford, Ont. first as canvassing agent, being promoted from front rank with this company and making lots of money. He has also seen a lot of the world, having been sent to Australia South Africa, England and the United States. It was therefore not to wondered that he was opposed to his son taking up a profession, and the son in question had a liking for money and travel, it was finally decided that he ought to follow in the footsteps of his father and enlist with this old reliable Publishing House, especially as he had just received a good salaried offer

GETTING OUT OF A DILEMNA. During the last balf of the eighteenth century the Governments of the day frequently kept themselves in power by bribing and corrupting members of Parliament; and this was the case during the debates on the India bill, when the Opposition, led by For, found its majorities stendily decreasing. This, it was known, was the work of the Scoretary to the Treasure, John Robinson, who used both places and money to carry out the Ministerial policy. One evening, Sheridan, speaking of the
