A REAL SANTA CLAUS.

Santa Claus, I long for you, By the chimney stockings two! One for me and one to go To another boy I know.

There's a chimney in the town! You have never travelled down it! Should you come, there's there. You'll find us in a room all here.

Not a stocking could you say.

Matters not how you may try;

And the shoes you'd find, are such!

A broken heel had you see.

Some one just about like me,

Dreaming of the pretty toys

We had, and bright to buy, before

And to him Christmas seems

Merry only in his dreams.

All he dreams, then, Santa Claus,

Shall the stars bring him because

We're filled up to the brim.

It's Santa Claus for him.

LITTLE POLLY LYNNING.

A CHRISTMAS SKETCH.

George scribbler had saved up $20 with which he intended to buy a Christmas present for his wife and a candlestick for the babies. He took the money from his writing desk before Christmas and started out to make his purchases. He supposed he was with thoughts of what he intended to buy him but did not serve two "light fingered" gypsies, one of whom foisted against him in the crowded street, while the other more neatly extracted his purse from his pocket with a $20 which he had purchased him. How much to save.

He went into one of the large stores of the city, selected the goods he wanted and left for the money to pay for them. The pocketbook of course was gone. He felt hurriedly in every pocket, but there was no trace of the wallet. Like a flash he remembered the man who had jolted against him and recalled how quickly he had acted. His pocketbook had been picked. He felt for his watch. Luckily the pickpockets had not succeeded that.

"Put those things on the shelf for a little while," he said, "and I will return for them."

That wife and the little ones got their Christmas presents that year, and a pawnbroker on Sixth avenue had this entry on his books: "George Scribbler, gold watch, $20." —Exchange.

WHAT'S IN A NAME?

Depends upon the name. Scott's Emulsion is a name that has value. Maybe it doesn't mean much to you—but to the consumptive who has been strengthened and fatigued, to the sickly children who have received good health, to the weak mothers and babies who have grown strong—to these Scott's Emulsion means something.

To all of them it has meant an easy and natural return to health.

Patient—I'm sorry now that I sent you, doctor, because I feel so much better that I don't need any medicine. Doctor—Better take some; I'll charge you just the same for this visit whether you do or not.—Ohio State Journal.

Ethel, aged five, was learning to sew, and one day, after vainly trying to make the preliminary preparations with a needle and thread, she asked, "Mamma, don't they call the hole of a needle an eye?" "Yes, dear," was the reply. "Well," continued the little girl, "I believe this old needle's been cryed."
