OLD FRIENDS THE BEST.

Grandly looked at his fine new chair.

On the twenty-sixth of December, saying: "Santa Claus has got to me, He never fails to remember me, But my own man-child is the one for me."

(And he settled himself in it nicely.) "I hope he won't mind if I cling to it, For it fits my back precisely."

Papa came home that very night, He had placed his very through the snow, And the Christmas twinkle had left His step as true and slow.

Waiting for him at the doorway, The lovely mother looked at him, That twinkle on the Christmas tree had left His step as true and slow.

And when dear little Marjory's feet came down, The long dark lashes dipping on her cheeks, Another Christmas lay around her, Neglected Angel's wakened eye, The fire had melted completely, But her previous rag doll Hannah, On her breast was resting sweetly.
