A PROSPEROUS YEAR.

As far as eye can see across the plain, the golden stubble of the garnered wheat spreads its bright gleam across the rolling hills.

Prophetic of a year of bounteous yield: A year when Peace and Plenty, hand in hand, proclaim "good cheer" throughout a prosperous land.

A VERMONT SHEPHERD DOG.

Here is a true story of a Vermont sheep-dog which Scotchmen will find it hard to match: Captain C., of Bradford, Vt., had a "shepherd dog" which was accustomed to being home at night, always separating itself from the other cattle, and never allowing any but such cows to come up. One day Captain C. accompanied the dog in driving the cows to pasture. At one place on the road the captain was surprised to see the dog desert the herd and take to the woods by the side of the road. The captain went on with the cattle, which were walking heavily in advance. Within a quarter of a mile they came to a break in the fence, of which the captain had no knowledge, leading into a field, and here, in the gap of the fence, sat the dog in a matter-of-fact way, guarding it against the entrance of the cattle. What else could his master suppose than that the dog was aware of the trap in the fence, and knowing that the man would bring up the cattle, made a detour through the woods to the place to prevent the cattle from going into the field.—Boston Transcript.

THE PRICE OF MANHOOD.

Into one of our college communities these came, last commencement, an old man of splendid presence and fine oratorical gifts. "The boys" in their parlance, "went wild" over him. There was but one sentiment among them, "That's the man I want to be!"

"Boys," said an old professor, "that's a fine ambition; those boys' a noble man in the State than Judge H.— God bless him! But before you make up your mind to be just like him, let us count up the cost."

Then the professor told his eager listeners something of the private history of his hero from his boyhood up: of privations, of thwartings, of misunderstandings, of losses, of crosses, of disappointments, and of failures, all of which had gone to make up the man.

"You may be sure," he said, "God needed every one of those strokes; he never wastes workmanship. Are you willing to pay this price for noble manhood?" and the young heroes—shipwrecked, scattered, and longing to receive his knight hood, even at such cost, but making no more vivid demonstrations about it.

"It is for you to desire the best gifts—you who stand at life's threshold; but remember that precious things are also costly. Hold yourself ready, then, to pay the price of being strong, tender, successful, of being what you include them all, useful."

The Master says to each one who desires to begin with him, "Are you able to drink of the cup that I drink of?" and as that cup is offered to you, you may be granted your grace to humility and faith, "Master, by Thy help we are able."—Forward.

GROWING LENGTHWISE

You want the children to grow, but not all lengthwise. When they start that way Scott's Emulsion will help them to grow right—with due plumpness and outward proportion, and with inward vigor and good spirits.

The Emulsion increases digestive power and strengthens the vital organs to get the best and make the most out of all the other food. It gives a kind of help that every growing child ought to have.

TRAIN UP A CAT.

The lady who was visiting the family spoke approvingly of the cat. He was large and tawny and had exceptionally good manners, as well as a soft affectionate purr. She said that she supposed he had been taught a good many tricks. The hostess was just explaining that she liked him better without tricks when a crash like shivering china interrupted them.

The four-year-old son of the visiting lady, who had scrambled away from his mother and was using the cloth some teapot as a ball on the carpet, had thrown the teapot against the radiator. In a little mood of playfulness, and they shivers of it lay strewn across the floor.

"O, I am so sorry," murmured the mortified mamma. "I really do not know what to do with Cameron; he grows so headstrong. I shall have to begin to train him soon; but I dread the struggle. One has to discipline a mere baby—and yet, in a four-year-old, and really, I must do something!"

The cat stepped cautiously over to the wreck on the carpet. He put out his nose, sniffed delicately, and then he put out a careful paw to examine the fragment. His address spoke, in a low and firm tone, gentle, but with the downward inflection of rebuke: "Sandro!"

The cat drew back, looked at her, and went quickly away to his cushion.

"How remarkable!" said the visiting lady. "How long have you had him?"

The hostess looked at the cat, then she glanced furtively at the now sulking child. "He is four months old," she said gravely.—Natalie Rice Clark.

There never was and never will be a universal panacea in one remedy for all ills to which flesh is heir. What would relieve one ill in turn would aggravate the other. We have, however, in Quinine Wine, which obtained in a sound, unadulterated state a remedy for many and various ills. By its gradual and judicious use the frailties of the system are relieved to a degree which Quinine wine, in its medicinal form, cannot achieve. Perfect Cure for Bronchitis.

This disease can be treated only by a remedy carried to the affected parts along with the air breathed, for nature intended these organs for the passage of air alone, and sprays, atomizers and external medicines utterly fail. But Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, which is carried over the air breathed, goes, and its healing antiseptic vapor is sure to reach every affected part. Chamberlain's Inhalant is inhaled at the mouth and after passing through every air cell of the breathing organs is slowly inhaled through the nostrils. Chamberlain's Inhalant and the Inhalant cure all bronchial affections. Price 25c. Small size 15c. Druggists or Parson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

A Dreadful Tale.

There are three common diseases, Scrophulous Catarrh and Consumption. The first and second commonly go hand in hand, and sometimes the third joins them,—a dreadful trio.

Why call attention to them? Simply to tell what will cure scrophulous catarrh and prevent consumption successfully. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is the Hoop's Sarsaparilla.

In the fall of the progress of these diseases is most rapid and we would advise that treatment with this great medicine be begun at once.

A Remarkable Record.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has a remarkable record. It has been in use for over thirty years, during which time many million bottles have been sold and used. It has long been the standard and main reliance in the treatment of croup in thousands of homes, yet during all this time no case has ever been reported to the manufacturers in which it failed to effect a cure. When given as soon as the child becomes hoarse or even as soon as the croupy cough appears, it will prevent an attack. It is pleasant to take, many children like it. It contains no opium or other harmful substance and may be given as confidently to a baby as to an adult. For sale by A. T. Brown.

THE WINTER SLEEPERS.

There are some kinds of animals that hibernate in the winter, that are not wholly asleep all the time. The blood moves a little, and once in a while they take a breath. If the weather is mild at all, they wake up enough to eat.

Now let's let them know all this beforehand? Such animals always lay up something to eat, just by their side, when they go into their winter sleeping places. But those who do not wake up move by any food, for it would never be used if they did.

The little red mouse lays up nuts and grain. It eats some when it is partly awake on a warm day. The bat does not need to do this, for the same warmth that wakes him wakes all the insects on which he feeds. He catches some and then eats. When he is going to sleep again he hangs himself up by his hind claws. The woodchuck, a kind of marmot, does not wake; yet he lays up dried grass near his hole. What is it for, do you think? On purpose to have it ready the first moment he wakes in the spring. Then he can eat and be strong before he comes out of his hole.

How many things are sleeping in the winter! Plants, too, as well as animals. What a busy time they do have in waking up, and how little we think about it! And this is the waking up time—awakened.

I WILL, NOT DREAM.

I will not dream in vain despair. The steps of progress wait for me; The puny leverage of a hair The plumb's impulse will many square, A drop of dew the tided sea.

The loss, if less there be, is mine, And yet not mine if understood; For out shall go my soul and my body, One drink life's rue and one the wine, And God shall make the balance good.

—Whittier.
