They are usually in some sort of uniform, and have a number worn prominently on the breast. It is well to note this number, as it serves as identification. The amount of baggage which may be checked on a ticket is very little, and in some countries none at all. The traveler will find it not only less expensive to take hage, suit cases and caray-alle in place of trunks, but also less trouble. It is sometimes poselblo to check one trunk on two tickets and thus save excess haggage."
