Disgracing the Park. Acton's public park is a beautiful place at this season of the year, and many of our citizens enjoy a quiet walk over its grassy acres with the surrounding lakeside beautice in view. Hut there must be some police super vision if these walks are to be taken without coming in contact with disgracuful scenes. Last Hunday no less than four drunken men were seenlying at different points in the park, and at the west out a group of young fellows were playing cards in plain view o citizens and the children strolling past These thing ought not so to be,

A Watering Trough by the Wayaide. There is a feature of our highways which should receive more consideration. A watering trough by the roadside is a real boon to a hot and thirsty horse on a warm day. Throughout this country there are many places where springs abound convenient to the road-ide, which, with a few hours labor on the part of owner of the prop orty, and perhaps a few of his neigh bors, could be converted into perma nent blessings for themselves and all who drive past. Some have generously taken this step and a grateful public honors their generous thoughtfulness. Many more may with profit put into offect this humans and practical idea.
