

WHEN COMPANY COMES.

Some boys are mad when company comes to stay for weeks. They hate to have the other people out, while boys must wait and wait. But I've about made up my mind I'm different from the rest. For, as for me, I believe I like the second table better than the first.

To see along with play is trying, for it's tough.

To see and watch the vitals when you want to see them is trying.

You see your father serving out the dark meat and the light.

Until a boy is sure he'll serve before he gets a bite.

When company is watching you, you've got to be polite.

And on your plate with a fork, you can't have anything till your father says you may have it.

Fork in hand, and a boy is never asked at all.

THE LITTLE RIVER STONE.

For centuries before the opening of famous diamond fields, by the English had been tramping round the continent, and for years Dutch and English hunters, planters, farmers, shepherds and missionaries trekked as headless over the Vast region.

There is nothing surprising in this. Home in "The Diamond Mine of South Africa." To the natives rough diamonds had no more attraction than any other pretty pebble.

One of the trekking Boers, Daniel Jacobs, had made his little settlement of Hopetown. Here his children grew up round him with little more care than the goats that browsed on the kopjes.

They had never seen a boy of any kind, but the instinct of childhood will find anything on the face of the most barren kopje, and the Jacobs children were luckily close to the edge of a river which was strewn with innumerable beautiful pebbles, mixed with coarser boulders.

So it came about that a poor farmer's boy found on the river bank one day in the early spring of 1867 a little stone that was worth more than his father's farm. He carried it home in his pocket, and it was not long before he was a rich man.

A heap of these pretty-colored stones was so common a sight in the yard or on the floor of a farmhouse on the banks of the Orange and Vaal that none of the pebbles Boers gave it a second glance. But when the children tossed the stones about, the little white pebble was so sparkling in the sunlight that it caught the eye of the farmer's wife. She did not know enough for it to be a pebble, and she showed it to a neighbor, Schalk Van Nierkerk.

Van Nierkerk asked to see it, but it was not in the house. One of the children had rolled it away in the yard. After some search it was found in the dust, for somebody had dropped it would stop for such a trifle. When Van Nierkerk wiped off the dust, the little stone glittered as prettily that he offered to buy it. The good woman laughed at the idea of selling a pebble.

"You can keep the stone if you want it," she said.

So Van Nierkerk put it in his pocket and carried it home. He had only a vague idea that it might have some value, and put it into the hands of a travelling trader, John O'Reilly, who undertook to find out what kind of a stone it was, and whether it could be sold.

He showed the stone to several Jews in Hopetown and in Colerberg, a settlement farther up the Orange River valley. No one of these would give a penny for it.

"It is a pretty stone enough," they said, "probably a topaz, but nobody would pay anything for it."

Perhaps O'Reilly would have thrown the pebble away if he had not come under the eye of the acting civil commissioner at Colerberg, Mr. Lorenz Boys. Mr. Boys found on trial that the stone would scratch glass.

"I think it is a diamond," he observed, gravely.

O'Reilly was greatly cheered up.

"You are the only man I have seen" he said, "who says it is worth anything. Whatever it is worth, you shall share in it."

The stone was sent for determination to the foremost mineralogist of the colony, Dr. W. G. Atherstone, residing at Grahamstown.

It was so lightly valued that it was put in an unsealed envelope and carried to Grahamstown in the regular post-carrier. When the postboy handed the letter to Doctor Atherstone, the little river stone fell and rolled away.

The doctor picked it up and read the letter of transmission. Then he examined the stone carefully, and soon after wrote to Mr. Boys:

"I congratulate you on the stone you have sent to me. It is a veritable diamond, weighs twenty-one and a quarter carats, and worth five hundred pounds. It has spotted all the jewelers' floors in Grahamstown, and where that came from there must be more."

This report was a revelation which transformed the displaced karandak into the princely Charles Boyce, and by the way of her fairy godmother, Capital was attracted to the region, and finally the great chartered company which the late Cecil Rhodes conceived was brought into existence.

JACK LONDON AMONG THE LEPROSERS.

On his way around the world for the Woman's Home Companion Jack London visited the lepers of Molokai, on the island of Hawaii.

"Leprosy is not so contagious as is imagined," writes Mr. London in the January Woman's Home Companion. "I went for a week's visit to the settlement, and I took my wife along—and which would have not happened had we any apprehension of contracting the disease. Nor did we wear long gloves and keep apart from the lepers. On the contrary we mingled freely with them, and before we left knew scores of them by sight and name. The precautions of simple cleanliness. As returning to their own houses, after having been among—and handling lepers, the leprose, such as the physicians and the superintendent, merely wash their faces and hands with mildly antiseptic soap, and change their coats."

SPARKLES.

"Why is a panache like the sun?"

"Because," said the Swede, "it rises out of the east and sets behind the west."

"There was a dinner party at the mayor's, and the servant had the misfortune to drop the turkey when bringing it in.

"It is all right, me an," she cried, with great sangfroid, picking up the turkey and going out with it. "I will bring in the other one."

Little Ethel—Mamma, don't people ever get punished for telling the truth?

Mamma—No, my dear, why do you ask?

Little Ethel—'Cause I just took the last three turkeys in the pantry, and I thought I'd better tell you.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

A TRULY IDEAL WIFE

HER HUSBAND'S BEST HELPER

Vigorous Health is the Great Source of Power to Inspire and Encourage—All Women Should Seek It.

One of the most noted, successful and dignified men of this century, in a recent issue of the "Woman's Home Companion" writes: "I have a daughter who is a truly ideal wife. I have attained in this world I owe all to my wife. From the time I first knew her she has been an inspiration, and the greatest helpmate of my life."

Mrs. Beattie Anselley

To be such a successful wife, to retain the love and admiration of her husband, to inspire him to make the most of himself, should be a woman's constant study. If it is not, she is a failure. It is a simple thing, she gets easily tired, dark shadows appear under her eyes, she has backache, headache, nervousness, irritability, and the blues, she should start at once to build up her system by taking Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It is a powerful tonic, such as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, at Lynn, Mass. Her advice is free and always helpful.

Dear Mrs. Pinkham: "Ever since my child was born I have suffered, as I hope you never ever have, with inflammation, neuralgic weakness, beating-down pains, headache and wretched backache. It affected my stomach so I could not enjoy my meals, and half my time was in bed."

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound made me a well woman, and I feel so grateful that I am able to write and to tell of my marvelous recovery. It brought me health, new life and vigor. I am now well and happy. I am at 111 South 10th Street, Tacoma, Wash.

What Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did for Mrs. Anselley will do for every sick and ailing woman.

If you have symptoms you don't understand, write to Mrs. Lydia E. Pinkham, daughter-in-law of Lydia E. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. Her advice is free and always helpful.

"Well, that's what he calls it; but the editor says it's painful."

Preacher's Opinions

Rev. J. K. McRae, Forks Dalwood, C. B. "I always count it a pleasure to recommend the Dr. Eason Remedy to my parishioners. I believe there is nothing better for throat and lung troubles or weakness or run-down system. For speaker's sore throat I have found Psychine very beneficial."

Rev. W. H. Stevens, Paisley, Ont.: "Psychine seemed just the stimulant my system needed. I shall add my testimony as to its efficacy at every opportunity."

Rev. R. M. Brown, Amherst, Head, N. B.: "I have often recommended Psychine since taking it myself, for it is a cure for the troubles you specify."

Rev. Chas. Stribles, Rail, N. B.: "I have used Psychine in my family; the results were marvelous. I have visited people who state that they never used it so successfully as they did when they used Psychine. It is all claimed for it."

These are earnest preachers of the gospel of Psychine. They know whereof they speak. Psychine cures all throat, lung and stomach troubles. It is a great voice strengthener, acting directly on the vocal, respiratory and digestive organs. It is especially adapted to public speakers. At all druggists, 25c and $1.00, or Dr. T. A.
