The analversary ontertainments the Methodist Hunday School for 1000, 1007 and 1008, have all been under the direction of Miss Amy L. Doty. London, and as a result of her able and skilful training, every one of then has been a triumphant succeess. The distinguishing feature of the antertain ment on Monday evening was the Easter spirit which predominated, and this gave opportunities for the intro duotion of very appropriate and in pressive numbers suitable to the sonone of the areas for his ligid. Bir laye recited "The Second Table," in which they complained of the strict etiquotte imposed when at the first table with company. They preferred the second table with its freedom when the old folks were in the parlor. "Weaver John" was a motion song by 80 scholars. It was well executed and brought down the house. The well-known recitation "The Kies in School," was given in concert by 10 girls and was a very taking number. A solo by little Miss Stella McLam, "Two Dirty Little Hands," was well rendered and demonstrated the fact that Miss Stella has a voice worth training. The closing number of the first part was a doll drill by 24 little girls. It included a march, recitations, drill and slumber song. The little tota were indeed cute in carrying out their parts, and the mothering of their doll habies was very natural and tion with every 50 cent box or mone attractive. The second part was opened with a recitation in concert by 12 boys. In a well-assumed spirit of nonchalance,

At this point Miss Doty herself gave "A Sermon to Husbands," which had point as well us clooutlenery morit. It pointed out in unmistakable terms the duty of husbands to their wives in financial matters. The illustrated hymn, "The Shadow of the Cross," was symbolic and reverential. It was given by oleven young ladies and their interpretation of the upirit of the hymn by posing and chorus wasvery impressive. The Easter drill by 16 young ladles was a magnificient piece of work, Their dainty white costumes with sashus of Easter colors rendered their appearance most attractive, while the marching and evolutions of the drill were perfect. Miss Doty invariably brings her entertainments to a worthy ollmax in the closing number and this was most skilfully accomplished with the "Garlanding of the Cross" by 75 scholars. These were first grouped about a large cross placed in the centre of the platform, and under subdued lights they sang, "There is a Green Hill Far Away," Miss Bertle Smith leading with two of the verses as solo, with suitable recitations and Scripture quotations. The cross was then garlanded with evergreens, and good time and went home early in the and children. then with a profusion of flowers. The effect was most feeling and reverential.
