EXPENSIVE DISHES.

Tempting and Nourishing Things Made With Culver Brains.

With Culver brains you may concoct a number of tempting dishes rich in nourishment and small in expense, says the Culinary. Carefully prepared, brains are equal to sweetbreads, which they resemble, with the advantages that they have, and that they are easily digested. Carefully prepared, brains are equal to sweetbreads, in all methods of cooking brains they should be given the same preliminary treatment—parboil them fifteen minutes in water to which have been added a dessertspoonful of vinegar and a little salt. Let them to cold water and then add a few drops of each, remove all dark streaks and skinny membranes. They are then ready to be cooked according to various recipes, some of which follow:

Culinary—Stew—Parboil—Stir—Stew the gel of a jar of brains previously parboiled; then with a thin, sharp knife split each division. This will result in pieces similar in shape and size to oysters. Beat the yolk of an egg slightly with cold water and dip the brains in it. Fry in a well greased pan, until golden brown. Fry garnish in hot butter and lard. Garnish with quartered lemon which has been rolled in nutmeg powder.

Brulee—Braise—Break the brains directed, stir into the pan, add a pint of hot water and two tablespoonsfuls of tomato paste. Put the brains back into the pan, cover and simmer gently for fifteen minutes. Serve in a border of boiled eggs.

Culinary—Brown, together a tablespoonful of flour and one of butter. Add one pint of hot water, a tablespoonful of Worcestershire sauce and enough tomatoes to make a sauce. Sauté in the brains which have been cut into small dice shaped pieces and let simmer, covered, for fifteen minutes. Fill the pots shells with this mixture, and serve.

Cheese Nut Biscuits.

Flax meal carefully together, sugar, Woman's Home Companion, one cupful or fine granulated sugar, one-fourth of a cupful of melted butter, one beaten egg, two squares of unsweetened chocolate, one-half cupful of flour, a cupful of vanilla, one-half of a cupful of flour and one-half of a cupful of English walnut meat cut in pieces. Like a sorbet such texture, mix with paper pulp, and spread on a greased tray. Bake in an oven. As soon as removed from oven turn from pan and remove paper, then cut in strips, rolling a long, sharp knife. If these directions are not followed the paper will stick to knife and it will be impossible to cut it in shape we please.

persistently, this peril would be tremendously reduced.

CONSCIENTIOUS

A FOUNDATIONLESS CANARD

That Ravinette & Co. are to Remove Their Tailors from Acton to Branshbridge.

UNITED THEY ARE LAUGHING HIGH

The following telegraph appeared in the Toronto papers on Thursday evening last:

HAMILTON, June 30.—There are persistent reports about town that the tannery at Acton will be sold, that as an embodiment of the Muskoka Leather Co., a Headboard concern, but that nothing definite has been received from a reliable source. It is known that an accompaniment to the location of the Acton Tannery here, an old building, will be built to accommodate the head of one and a half dozen which the present Muskoka Leather Company have to offer.

The First Press has interviewed Mr. W. H. Headboard, the head of the Headboard interests here, with reference to the above.

Mr. Headboard characterized the report as absurd.

"Domestic think we foolish enough to sacrifice our large interests here? Why, instead of removing, we are at the present time engaged in enlarging and improving our works here at the cost of thousands of dollars, and are arranging to put in a switch line at a large expense to us."

"I am not of any thought of removing we have been here for years engaged in rebuilding and continually improving our works with a view to permanency, and we expect our tannery here in Acton will be among the largest in the world."

"We must stay, however," continued Mr. Headboard, "We would appreciate very much if Acton Municipal Council had some of the citizens would meet in a more liberal spirit. We are spending large sums of money here continually, not only for labor, but in making improvements, and we hope to make up our losses in the future."

Mr. Headboard stated that he had just entered his twenty-first year.

"Many friends and former neighbors here extend their hearty sympathy with Mr. and Mrs. Ramsay in their bereavement.

Twenty-four pairs were brought from Toronto. Yesterday morning and the funeral was held at the home of Mr. George Dille, Park Ave., at three o'clock, to Fallow Cemetery.
