A quaint ocremony is that still of taining in some parts of Normandythe "benediction des bestlaux." The oxen, the asses, and the draught horses are assembled in front of a church. There may also be a bullock or two. and perhaps some cows. The procession of peasants; "clail in their very best, issues from the church to the sound of a shant that is droned by the priest. The venerable cure sprinkles a few drops of water on the heads of the beasts, and when all the animals have received the benediction the next feature of the orrenteny is to place at the pedestal of the proce fabling the church, bundles tied in coarse linen. These bundles contain bread, and salt, which are to be given to those beasts not able to attend the ceromony.
