annual sermon by Rev. F. G. Burrell The sixth commandment formed the beals of the sermon. After touching lightly upon murder in general, such as war and capital punishment, Rev. Mr. Burrell spoke upon the desperand less perceptible ways in which the commandment was broken, dividing his subject into parts. First, in the great race for wealth as it exists to-day the pace is hotter and faster than it has ever been before. causing hundreds to fall exhausted by the wayside, and enter their graves much sooner than they would under a milder and more quiet system.

Second, in the slum districts, the foster home of ain and crime, the mother of much tuberculosis and typhoid, where lives are daily sacrificed and character degraded.

Third, with unfaithful perents who eglect their children and fall to give then the start in life that they need, leaving them, as it were, to the care of chance and sympathy. This also being the cause of much ill health, uphappy days and shortened life. Fourth, by the uncontrolled ambitions, passions and desires of humanity, by which even the most loved ones are being slowly destroyed. Now since there is no time with God, these, which are the cutting off of life, are murder just as much as if we were to pull the trigger of a revolver and bring about what men call instantaneous

Fifth, each man is responsible for his own life, and to fall to cultivate the highest tastes, to come short of reaching the greatest possible attainment is to cut off life in that sphere, and is therefore suicide and murder. The greatest of all attainments is that which takes hold upon' Christ. whom to know is life and of whom June 27-Garden party at Bucking- the spoetle said, "He that bath the ham palace. . Gala performance at His Bon hath life." To fall here is indeed suicide and is, above all other things, the breaking of the commandment Visit of the king and queen to royal that bide us do no murder. In saying these things the speaker believed be June 20-Royal progress to the city, | was voicing the sentiments of the order represented, and trusted that these would become concrete realities in their lives, as well as opinions.
