LIGHTNING VERSUS STEAM

Testing the Telegraph in the Early Days of Its Invention. Years ago, when the electric telegraph was a new idea and a mystery to the masses, there came trouble one Saturday night in the Bank of England. The business of the day had closed and the balance was not right There was a deficit of just £100. It was not the money, but the error, that must be found. For the officers and the clerks there could be no sleep until the mystery had been cleared up. All that night and all Bunday a force of men were busy; money was surely gone from the vaults, but no one could discover whence. On the following morning a clerk suggested that the mistake might have occurred in packing for the West Indies some boxes of specie that had been sent to Southampton for shipment. His chief acted on the suggestion. Here was an opportunity to test the powers of the telegraph-lightning against steem, and steem with fortyeight bours the start. Very soon the telegraph asked a man in Southampton, "Has the ship Mercator salled?" The answer came back, "Just weigh-

"Stop ber in the queen's name," fisshed back the telegraph." "She is "Have on dock certain boxes (marks given), weigh them carefully, and les me know the result," telegraphed the

It is sometimes claimed that the dairy quality of the Brown Artha brood has been improved and the breed "refined" by the American breeders who have cultivated this breed for the last thirty years, writes E. M. Barton in Hoard's Dairyman. The method of "refining" has consisted in feeding the calves less liberally while they are growing and in breeding the helfers about a year carilor than is the Swiss practice, thus making thom lighter and leaner thun they would be if they had had the usual care that is given to young cattle in Switzerland. By following this practice for two or three generations the normal weight of the cows is reduced two or three hundred pounds, and this is done without spoil ing the cows for milking purposes.

Whether this practice takes off some thing from the milk and butter quality and whether it takes off something from the useful life of the cow is bard to prove one way or the other, but I hold to the theory that, the breed being of the highest dairy quality and at the same time of considerable weight, as it has been bred for hundreds of genorations in Switzerland, the chances are that the "reflaing" process, so called, which has gone on in this country is in reality a stunting process and that by liberal feeding of the calves. as is practiced in Switzerland, and comparatively late breeding of the helfers we shall keep to the true Swiss type and have better wilk and butter rields and longer life. There were at the national dairy show in Chicago last fall two cows. Iown Laude and Mernie, that represont five generations of American breeding. The former was selected by the judge as the champles cow of the breed, and the inter had made a fine record for amount and economy of production at the Wisconsin experiment station. These cows have finer hone, the bind logs are less straight, their weight under 1,200 pounds, and in the view of many exports showed the highest dairy quality. They are good rollkers and good cows, but to my mind they are not as typical representatives of the breed as the blg headed, strong legged, square buttock ed 1,500 pound cows that are imported and occasionally raised in this country and such as you find represented the large numbers in the stables of their own country. The normal weight of lown Lassie, the champion cow, is 1,130 pounds. With her second calf she gave within

The quantity of milk is moderately large and the fat con-tent good. According to the Amerlcan standard, the color is dark to light brown or some seasons of the year gray. The cow here shown was bred in New York and made a record of 4.403 pounds of milk in 120 a year 10,000 pounds of milk testing 443 nounds of butter fat and dropper her third calf about thirteen months after her second, constituting a dairy record of which one need not be ashamed. She is now making a record with hor third calf which will prob ably surpass the former one. Naegell, that was exhibited at the same show, has a normal weight o 1.550 pounds. After dropping her sec ond calf she gave within twelve months 12.016 pounds of bulk testing Treatment For Boratches. scratches is to see that, the horse stands in a clean stall, where no mud dung or urino can come in contac with his beels, writes David Buffum in Farm and Fireside. Failure to attend to this is often the cause of scratches though they also appear without any external cause, owing to some condi tion of the system. Scratches are sometimes very obati nate about healing. The best external remedy that I know of is white lead Have the sore places perfectly clean and dry and then see that they are completely covered with white lead. Blad it on with a bandage if it will not stick without one and renew the application twice a day. Meanwhile feed the unimal generously, keep sait in his manger and give him enough bran every day to keep his bowels open. This treatment, if faithfully followed up, should make an improve ment to him very soon, though if the case is a bad one it is impossible to say bow long it may take to effect a cure.

Petit Bulese or Cream Cheese. Petit Suisse cheese is essentially the same as Nanfchatel, but differs slight ly in shape. According to bulletin 103 of the United States department of agriculture it is made as follows: The milk, preferably fresh, is set at 85 degrees F. with only so much rennet as is necessary to secure the deafred congulation in twenty-four hours in summer and from thirty-six to forty-eight hours in winter. The curd is then inclosed in cheesecioth and drained for twelve hours, after which it is subjected to pressure for another period of twelve hours. It is then boroughly kereaded by hand or in the larger factories by means of a curd mill and prossed into tin cylinders about two inches in diameter and three inches high. The cheeses are removed from the molds, salted and roplaced. After draining for twentyfour hours they are transferred to the so called drying room, where they howith blue molds. After these ler tures be invited questions, none of which was able to shake his belief. When naked, for example, "Why does the intl of a ship disappear below the horizon while the masts remain visthiel' he would answer, "Because the lowest stratum of air is the densest and therefore soonest concepts objects seen through it." Finally he showed his whole hearted beilef in his absurd vlows by laying a heavy wager that no one would disprove them. The stakes were deposited in the lunds of Judges, and the trial, under agreed conditions, took place upon the New river, as part of the canal is called. Three boats were moored three miles apart, each provided with a crossfree of equal belght. If the earth was spherical the central cross would appear above the other to an observer looking through a telescope leveled from the crosstree of the boat at either end; if it was flat he would see both the other crosstroom as one. "Parallax" declared that he did see them so, but the judges unant-

mously decided against bim, and the
