A SLIND GIRL LEADS THE SERING

She is the blind Jenny Wren of th slums, this slip of a girl, ninetern years old, who practically supports ber mother and a little brother and sister by making doll's clother. was only five years old when the ligh ent out; and she had to lay down her. dolls, never to see their loved faces again; but her fingers began at once learning exquisite skill. It does , not matter that the top floor spartment in which this little blind girl lives is shut in and darkened by the bigh buildings which tower above it on every side. . Surrounded by dolle of varying sizes and masses of soft colorad worsteds, baby blue and pink and scarlet and white, she works in the dark, crocheting diminutive sacks and dresses and caps and suits for dolls, and even the dolls themselves, for the New York stores. The little sister is always at'her side after school hours to belp in the selection of bolors; and the invalid mother winds worsted for the blind worker when she is not hasy with the housework. The girl has more orders for ber doll's clothes than she can fill, and at such good prices that she is able to contribute most materially to the support of the family. This year abe has decided to enlarge her prefulness, to go down the long tenement stairs and as far as a nearby settlement, where she will teach children who have their sight the skill of hand which she, sightless, has discovered. - Good Housekeeping.

RATHER BE A "HAS BEEN"

I'd rather be a "Could be." If I cannot be an "Are." For a "Could be" is a "May be," With a chance of touching par. I'd rather be a "Has been" Than a "Might have been" by far ; For a "Might be" is a "Hasn't been" But a "Has" was once un "Arr." Also an "Are" is "is" and "Am"; A "Has" was all of these.

A HAPPY HOME

Than a "Hasn't," if you please.

So I'd rather be a "Has been"

Six things are requisite to create "A Happy Home." Integrity must be the architect, and tidiness the upholaterer. It must be warmed by affection, and lighted up with cheerfulnees; and industry must be the ventilator, renewing the atmosphere and bringing in fresh salubrity day by day; while over all, as a protecting glory and canopy, nothing will suffice except of God. To be happy at home is the ultimate result of ambition, the end to which every enterprise and labor tends, and of which every desire prompts the proceention. It is indeed at home that every man most be known by those who would make a just estimate either of his virtue or felicity; for smiles and embroidery are alike occasional and the mind is often dressed for show in painted honor and fictitlous benevolence. - Johnson.
