IN MULL SYMPATHY

In the two leland sections of the Maritime Provinces, for instance, w notice a peculiar use of the word "whatever." This is, of course, perfectly proper word, used on proper occasions, but the use which is generally made of it in these sections is, to say the least, peculiar. _ It seems to be supplayed as a terminal expression for the purpose of lending emphasis to what has been said. It is in general use throughout the country districts and by most all classes of the popula tion. The following may be given as
