That Expensive County Bridge The Oakville Star says: There was a meeting of the Halton Road and Bridge Committee in Georgetown on Monday, when several high level bridge matters were considered. First It was decided to have an inspectorengineer on the work from the Canadisp Inspection company, a Government conofen who provide qualified inspectors. The heavy legal bill will likely be settled at a considerably reduoed figure. As any further delay in the matter of the arches would retard work it was decided that the arches be toen down. The committee was reluctant to do this but In the absence of an official who would my the arches are safe, no other course was open. It was felt that where there is the alightest doubt the public must be protected. It is better to be sure than

PERPETUAL_MOTION_IDEAS.

Efforts of Inventors Who Strain After the Unattainable. Perpetual motion, like the philosepher's stone, is one of those things resularly sought after. - Years age it was proved that the idea was abourd, yet ouly a week or so age another inventor came forward with a new perjectual motion notion. Some of these perpetual motion chines are certainly extremely inconous. One man thought be had discorered a way to run omnibuses by themselves. He bat cylinders of water placed just above the name, and on these cylinders was supported the whole weight of the less and namesgers. . Pipes led from this water to he back of the lass, curved round and ended in the back board of the bus. The more passengers there were the greater the pressure on the cylinders of water and the faster the flow of the water to the back of the bus. The faster, too, will the bus rush floward!

At least, so said the inventor, who ac-

Another wonderful Baptist minister. le Rev. Grey Hazlerigg, who, although minty-three years of age, is still .emgaged in ministerial work in Lelcester, in which town he has lived and worked for a period of sixty-one years. It Was Doing Duty. An Irish soldier while on furlough lost his loft eye; but, not wishing to leave the service, he got a glass one in its place before returning to his regiment: Being somewhat absent-minded, however, he appeared on pa-, rade one day without it. "Pat," said the aergeant-major, "you are improrade with only one eye." Pat was in no way nonplused, however. With characteristic Irish readiness he answered, "I left it in my quarters. sorr, to keep an eye on my kit."
