SPEAKING THE TRUTH A hard-faced woman talled on her minister to complain that in doing her duty her feelings had been hurt by squathing someone said about her. "And I only told her the whole truth," the woman complained.

"The whole truth?" the minister reposted. "That was a very wonderful schlevement, Mrs. Potter-who but God ever knows that? The biggest of us out but green tragments of it. Suppose you tell me exactly what you sald about Millie." "I mid," Mrs. Potter replied, "that Millie was growing wild, and everybody was talking about her, and if her mother didn't watch her closely is would be too late." "And you called that the truth?

the minister asked. "You said nothing about Millie being a pretty, affectionate child, nothing about her clever fingers, nor her kind-beartedness, nor ber unselffbures."

The Moral of it

The advertising colums of the Review are an index to the most progressive business houses in Vanleek Hill. People who know recognize that to reach a very large class of the best purchasing public it is necessary to use the Review columns. A very natural deduction is that the merchant who does not use the Review as an advertising medium does not care for the trade of those who can be reached only by the Review. Therefore the moral: Patronize the merchants who think your trade is worth while telling you about their offerings .- Vanlesh Hill Review.

Patronize Merchants who Invite you

USE IT SPARIMOLY

Mark Twain's saying that truth is so precious that we should use it sparingly must not be interpreted to mean that falsehood is necessary for social purposes. But it would be an uncomfortable world, il in our intercourse with others we pledged ourselves, as we do un the witness stand, to tell the truth and the whole truth. Few friends could express their minds to each-other without receivation and not endanger their friendship. Tact and good breeding accompliate the suppresion of a good many unpleasant facts. "I hope you do not find the chicken tough," said the anxious bost to the arctic explorer. "Madam," he said, "after walrow most I don't mind much of anything." This answer !!

was certainly lacking in tact. It is not necessary to tell all the truth all the time. It is not necessary to tell your friend that somebody thicks she dresses in poor taste. It is not incumbent of you to tell the church soldiet . hat the author would have been beautiful if she had not flatted on the high note. Much truth is unkind and nanecessary. Use it speringly.
