-----WHAT A BOY SHOULD KNOW

Joseph French Johnson, Dean of th New York University Pohool of Com merce. Accounts and Sinance, gives some interesting data on what a boy | child left me a wrock with terrible week should know when he leaves school to ealer basiness.

"He should know how to spell accurataly any word," writes the Dean. "He should know arithmetic thoroughly, and the Knglish language and the why of it. He should know at least a few of the important events of American bistory by heart.

"I would add to the boy's equipment besides a high school education, special study of business, banking and stocks and bonds. When the boy gets out into business, if he goes at from the bottom be becomes an exper and knows all about it, and he gets good salary in the end ; but if he has learned to pick up things outside o his regular round-bits of knowledge and experience—he has acquired the Bret requisite of education.

SILVER WEDDINGS.

They Had Their Origin In the Reign al Hugues Capst. The fashion of ailver weddings lates back to the reign of Hugues Capet, king of France in 987. Once as Hagues was arranging his uncle's affairs he found or one of the in the service of his relative. He had been such a friend of his master that he was simost looked upon as one of the family.

On the farm with this old man was also a serving woman who was as old as be and also unmarried and who had been the most devoted and hardworking of the women servants of the king's uncle. When the king heard these praises of the two, he ordered them to be brought before him and said to the woman:

"Your service is great, greater than this man's, whose services were great enough, for the woman always finds ! work and obedience harder than a man, and there I will give you a reward. At your age I'know of notes better than a dowry and a husband. The dowry is here-this farm from this time forth belongs to you. A Very Cute Faker. Enormous business has been done at a French fair by a man selling a rat powder, sure death to redents, but harmless to human beings. In order to convince the skeptical, the man first of all powdered a slice of breed with the stuff and ate a piece. The remainder he put under a glass case, in which a rat was kept in captivity. The rat went to eat the bread and instantly fell doad. At 10 cents a box the powder sold at a furious rate, and the man was in a fair way to make his fortune when the police nounced on him. The powder was found to be ordinary sugar, and they also discovered that the case was connected with a powerful electric battery and that the moment the rat touched the bread the current was turned on, and it was thus his death was brought about. The ingenious fakir was given a month in jail, and the business came to a stop. Paris Palice Reports. At the prefecture of police in Paris are preserved the most characteristic reports drawn up by policemen during the last thirty years. Thus, one guardian of the law announces his discovery of "the skeleton of a head whose owner I was unable to find." Another, with a love for brevity, wrote, "This gentleman gave me his card of membership of the Bociety of Animals." Yet another solemnly deposes that "the injured man was un-able to write, seeing that both of his feet were crushed." "The dootor we sent for stated that the injured man had his whole body covered with confusians," was found in another re-
