The man receiving a serious wound suffers no agony, as the nar-cotic from the bullet is beerbed by his system and he is immensible to pain before he reaches the bospital. The man whose would is mortal sleeps away until his last hours, thus doing away with most of the battle-field horror.

The Industrious Mela A naturalist once conceived the notion of ascertaining the amount of work a mole could accomplish in a given time. Accordingly the experiment turned a large specimen loose in the middle of a five-acre ?:ld. Five seconds, it is averred, after this mole received its freedom, it had burrowed out of night and the observer, with his essistants, after driving a stake at the starting point, retired and left, the ittle digger hard at work.

The start was made at 11 o'clock in the morning, and the direction taken was to the rest. By six o'clock in the evening this male is said to have dug some 23 feet in an irregular course, keeping, however, in the same general direction and not attempting any side galleries. Twenty-four hours after the start the tunnel had been driven 31 feet farther, with a number of side galleries, and four feet had been added at the extremity, making of branches, or a total of 104 feet of tunnels dug in 34 hours.

The bottom of the tunnels ran very evenly, about four inches below the surface. At certain points the hole was ellipitical in shape, measuring one and one-half inches in width by way a good success. One special it was triangular, measuring two feature of the programme was an inches each way.
